Power unit dedicated at New Madrid plant

NEW MADRID — The second unit of the New Madrid Power Plant was dedicated Wednesday during a program at the Associated Electric Cooperative Inc. site located in St. Jude Industrial Park, about five miles south of New Madrid.

The New Madrid electric generating station consists of two 600-megawatt units. The plant's 1,200 megawatt generating capacity makes it the largest electric generating station operated by any electric cooperative in the United States.

Constructed at a cost of $171,500,000, unit two is part of a $208,100,000 total project including over 300 miles of high voltage transmission line and sub-stations.

The first unit, which is owned by the City of New Madrid, was completed in July, 1972 and is leased and operated by AECI, whose main offices are in Springfield. Construction on the second unit began in January, 1974 and commercial operation began this month.

Power generated by the New Madrid plant and Associated's Thomas Hill plant near Moberly provides electrical energy for 350,000 to 400,000 users.

Gerald F. Diddle, general manager of AECI, said "This plant means much to the regional area and plays a major role in keeping the cost of electrical power down in rural Missouri". He said 15 per cent of the power produced by the New Madrid plant is dedicated to reserve. This reserve, Diddle explained, is to assist other rural electrical distribution systems when they experience an emergency in their systems. He added that the reserves save money for everybody in meeting the energy needs in both rural Missouri and metropolitan areas.

J. K. Smith, governor, National Rural Utilities Cooperative Finance Corporation in Washington, D.C. -- a bank formed in 1971 by 860 cooperatives to meet the needs of financing rural electrification -- was guest speaker.

In 1973, CFC committed a $140 million loan to Associated. Later when the Rural Electrification Administration was able to guarantee loans, CFC and Associated agreed to release Associated from the committment and allow the cooperative to get federal financing.

REA backed the project by guaranteeing loans totaling $142.4 million and was involved in an additional package of direct loans by REA in the Agriculture Department totaling $74.2 million, with $25 million invested by National Rural Utilities Cooperative Finance Corp.

Smith, who said electrical rates reflect the cost of the capital, pointed out that the improved money costs to Associated in turn improved the cost of a kilowatt.

David A. Hamil, administrator of the REA, Washington, D.C., stated in his dedication address that today 99 per cent of the farms have electrification. "Nothing has come along that has made the rural area more productive than getting electrical service", Hamil declared.

"Speaking for 24 million people in the rural United States, I take a deep honor and great pleasure in dedicating unit two to the benefit of all of you people here, your associates and to all the rest of the rural Americans", Hamil concluded.

Blount Brothers Corp. of Montgomery, Ala. was the general construction contractors for the project, which was designed and engineered by Burns and McDonnell Consulting Engineers of Kansas City.

M. W. Kellogg Company of New York built the 800-foot stack that meets environmental requirements. The $3 million stack is now utilized by both units, replacing the 600-foot stack that was built for unit one.

Bailey Meter Company, Wickliffe, Ohio provided the control systems, monitoring 1,330 points in the control room.

The purchase by AECI of two major pieces of machinery for unit two, jointly with those of unit one, the turbine generator from Brown Boveri Corp., Mannehein, Germany and the steam boiler from Babcock and Wilcox Corp., Barberton, Ohio, resulted in an $8 million savings alone for the generator.

The coal-fired steam generating power station is strategically located on a site adjacent to the Mississippi River. The total acreage includes 250 acres on the land side of the levee and about 272 acres on the river side of the levee.

Year-round navigation of the river provides dependable barge service for the approximately 3.6 million tons of coal used annually. The coal burn rate is 285 tons per hour for each unit.

The plant's coal supply, mined in southern Illinois by the Peabody Coal Co. had been shipped by rail to East St. Louis, then to New Madrid by barge. Since June, 1976, the plant's coal supply is delivered via the Kaskaskia River channel, which has resulted in shorter rail and barge routes and about $1 savings per ton.

The plant stockpiles 400,000 tons of coal or a 40-50 day supply representing a $6 million investment and spare parts on hand represent another $2.8 million.

Members of AECI board of directors present for the dedication were Rudie Slaughter, president, of Senath; O. B. Clark, vice president of Barnett; R. D. Pennewell, secretary- treasurer of Palmyra; M. W. Boudreaux of Palmyra; Dean Sanger of Venita, Okla.; Curtis L. Funston of Cameron; John K. Davis of Marshfield; Robert Stagner of Poplar Bluff; Harold F. Drought may cost farmers millions

ATLANTA (AP) — A twomonth drought through much of the South has parched land, shriveled crops and dried up water supplies, threatening to cost farmers millions of dollars.

Some farmers stand to take a double blow when their feed crops fail. They will be unable to feed their livestock and will have to sell animals at a loss.

The southern drought comes while the West's worst dry period in the century continues almost unabated, with forest fire danger high and water rationing imposed in many areas.

Damage to Georgia's corn crop is estimated at $94 million, because of fireworm and budworm infestation as well as lack of moisture.

"We are dry," said Wayne County, Ga., farm agent Bobby Deal. "We expect to lose 65 per cent of our corn crop."

But most of Georgia's crops haven't been planted and Agriculture Commissioner Tommy Irvin said the loss is impossible to estimate. The value of last year's soybean crop was put at nearly $144 million.

Several Georgia counties have begun issuing weekend warnings to residents to curtail washing their cars, watering gardens and filling swimming pools.

In Houston County, Ala., agriculture officials said about twothirds of the 60,000 acres of corn has been ruined.

Soybean crops in Alabama, Georgia and Virginia were all below normal.

Tobacco markets are expected to open next month, but this year's loss in Georgia alone is expected to be more than $8.5 million. In Virginia and Tennessee, tobacco is in good condition, but both areas need more rain to maintain a healthy crop.

Cotton losses in Georgia were estimated at $8 million, but other states reported good crop conditions, despite a shortage of moisture.

Pastures in Alabama, Mississippi and Tennessee are parched and dry and cattlemen are being forced to send cattle to market early.

In Alabama, a spokesman for the cattlemen's association said cattlemen stand to lose $100 million because calves are selling for about $35 per head less because they are going to market 75 to 100 pounds thinner than normal.

Gas supply doubtful

WASHINGTON (AP) — Even with normal weather, next winter's natural gas shortage may be as bad as last winter's, or worse, the Federal Power Commission is warning.

How much gas is available depends on a variety of factors, including the weather, the availability of more natural gas under emergency sales regulations and the ability of customers to switch to other fuels, the FPC said Wednesday.

The amount of gas in storage when the cold weather begins also will help determine the winter's supply, a report by the agency said.

The American Gas Association reported last week that the nation's natural gas storage capacity has increased slightly and stored gas supplies should be normal or larger than normal by October, when the heating season begins.

But there is no room for overconfidence.

Last winter, during a record cold spell, interstate pipelines were able to deliver only 5.715 trillion cubic feet of the 7.24 trillion cubic feet needed to meet customers' "firm requirements."

That left deliveries 21 per cent short of demand, and thousands of factories, businesses and schools were forced to close temporarily as a result.

This winter, the FPC said, pipeline companies expect the "firm requirements" to be a little lower, 7.2 trillion cubic feet.

But deliverable supplies have dropped even more, to 5.54 trillion cubic feet, leaving an anticipated gap of 23 per cent.

Severe weather like last winter's would increase demand and worsen the shortage, but also would bring emergency regulations into play that might allow partial relief by shifting some gas supplies around. That would make available to the interstate pipelines some intrastate supplies normally outside their reach.

The new FPC report is predicting a continuation of the trend that has been evident since about 1971, when the nation's natural gas production and sales to interstate pipelines began a long, steady

Housing funds received for eastern counties

JEFFERSON CITY — The Missouri Housing Development Commission has received Section 8 Set Aside Funds for the 53 non-metropolitan counties in eastern Missouri, according to William Moore, executive director of the commission.

The funds must be used to subsidize the construction or rehabilitation of 198 housing units, Moore said. New construction must include 18 elderly units, 58 family units and 40 large family units. Rehabilitation must include about 21 elderly units, 42 family units, 19 large family units.

The Southeast Misssouri Counties of Stoddard, Scott, Mississippi, New Madrid, Pemiscot and Dunklin are included in the proposals.

Moore said the commission will be accepting preliminary proposals for the project until 4 p.m. Aug. 1. The time period may be closed sooner if sufficient qualified proposals are received prior to that deadline, he added.

Anyone interested in submitting a proposal should contact the Missouri Housing Development Commission at 20 W. Ninth St., Suite 934, Kansas City.

She was taken to St. Francis Medical Center.

TOO MUCH LICENSE TAKEN

The propensity of Americans for making constitutional mountains out of legalistic molehills has seldom been better illustrated than by the case of the New Hampshire license plate dissenter.

A few years ago, New Hampshire decided to emblazon its license plates with the motto, "Live Free or Die." To one citizen of said state, George Maynard, the slogan was ideologically offensive. In his opinion, life was more precious than freedom — a belief to which he was and is certainly entitled.

Maynard, however, proceeded to tape over the slogan in violation of state law forbidding the defacement of license plates. This act of disobedience was not to be tolerated. In contradiction of its own motto, New Hampshire did not offer the dissenter the option of living according to his beliefs or departing this life, but rather began legal action against him.

To make a long story short, the case eventually wended its way up to the Supreme Court of the United States, which in its august majesty has just decreed that New Hampshire's attempt to compel Maynard to display the motto was a violation of his First Amendment right of free speech and amounted to a form of thought control.

That it may well have been. But it is also an awful lot of nonsense,and the real clowns in this comedy are the New Hampshire authorities who made a martyr out of Maynard in the first place.

Now if the man had defaced his plates so as to alter or obscure the numbers or had changed the expiration date or something like that, it would have been a different matter. It would also have been resolvable at some judicial level below that of the highest court in the land, without the employment of batteries of constitutional lawyers and the expenditure of thousands of dollars.

But so what if someone tapes over a portion of a license plate that is not essential for identification purposes? Who should care?

The legislator who dreamed up New Hampshire's "Live Free or Die" motto apparently thought it was an important statement or affirmation of some kind. We believe that an older motto still says everything that needs to be said: "Live and let live."

When the 60-county health committee meets this month to discuss ways and means of increasing usage of present health services, many Monroe Countians hope that it will discuss how the Monroe County Health Unit can be made more accessible to its users, especially to older or physically disadvantaged persons. It is now on the third floor of the courthouse and many cannot walk to it up the long flights of stairs. It is true that health office people will come to the first floor, but it is believed that if it was on a ground floor, more would take advantage of the services.

WHERE DO THEY GET THEIR FIGURES

Many people in the rural and small town areas of the nation would like to know where the U.S. Labor Department gets its figures on the costs of living. They are not convinced that they come from our areas, but more likely are from such high prices living places as Washington, D.C., New York, Detroit and others.

The Labor Department says that a family of four needs $10,041 income per year for "austere" living, and $16,236 for a moderate standard of living.

There are hundreds of families, possibly more, in Monroe County and Northeast Missouri who do and can live well on that sum, maybe have something left over.

Those "cost-ov-living" figures ought to be made by areas, not for the nation as a whole.

XXX

You Should Know That...

The Federal Election Commission, set up by Congress to prevent campaign abuses, is auditing neither the Carter nor Ford campaigns. Instead, the Washington Post reported last week, it is spending its time going over the books of the defeated candidates for the Republican and Democratic nominations. The commission operates on a $5 million-a-year budget, has more than 160 staffers, including two dozen auditors. Asked why it is concentrating on defunct campaigns instead of the current ones, Commissioner Neil Stabler said it was because the financial records of the old campaigns are now complete, whereas those of Ford and Carter are not.

Oh.

Why is natural gas in such short supply?

Like crude oil, natural gas has been subject to government price controls, only for a much longer time. In 1954, the Supreme Court ruled that the Federal Power Commission (FPC) could regulate natural gas at the wellhead so long as the gas was sold across state lines. For more than two decades, then, the price has been kept artificially low, making natural gas much in demand and at the same time reducing incentives on the part of producers to search for new supplies. The consequences were inevitable and a natural gas crisis, so to speak, was born in 1968, the first year that consumption exceeded the discovery of new reserves.

Industry people argue that freeing new gas from wellhead controls would let market forces determine the price, give producers the incentive to go after new reserves and, as the price rises, encourage conservation of this important fuel.

Preaching From The Audience

It certainly gripes us to have congressmen sitting around debating how much Social Security taxes the rest of us must pay when congressmen don't pay any at all. They don't pay Social Security because, at the taxpayers' expense, they have provided themselves with a better retirement plan. Obviously, this wouldn't be hard. Since the majority of lawmakers admit the plan is so lousy, why don't they do something about it? If a private company ran its retirement plan the way Congress runs ours, the company owners would have been put in jail. And, incidentally, if congressmen can escape paying Social Security taxes because they have a better plan, then why can't all the others who have a better plan do so, too?

The U.S. Holds Fast

We take NATO for granted at our peril. It must remain the cornerstone of our defense against the threat of Communist aggression from the East. Any idea of a "Euro-army" based on the Common Market is, also, a laughable prospect for the foreseeable future. The French in their spleen and their pride, have seen to that. That NATO endures after 30 years, that despite its military shortcomings it is still a credible deterrent is more than anything else a massive tribute to the United States of America. It has lasted so long, this committment in Europe by America to the West's defense, that we may be tempted to look on it as part of the natural order of things. We could not be more wrong. It almost amounts to a sustained act of defiance against historical gravity. The natural thing by now would have been for the Americans to have retreated into isolationism as they did between the two World Wars. The humiliation of Vietnam, coupled with the neutralism and defense cuts among so many of their allies, might so easily have provoked just such a withdrawal to "fortress America" but they've stuck to it with a determination that should shame us all.

XXX

Tying Up Loose Ends

The American commitment not to block Vietnam's admission to the United Nations is a uniquely important step in tidying up the foreign entanglements of the past two decades or more.

Barely two years after the collapse of the South Vietnamese regime it had propped up for so long at such great cost, the United States now seems well on the way to full diplomatic relations with a united Vietnam. It took 16 years to reach the same level of cordiality with Cuba.

The Carter Administration deserves credit for its decision to recognize certain realities instead of resisting them, and for writing off the mistakes of the past without an extended mourning period. And it's good that Americans can probably count on the same kind of pragmatism on a much older chink in the nation's foreign policy armor: the Panama Canal.

A new canal treaty is as inevitable as the resumption of diplomatic ties with Hanoi and Havana. Still, the talks with Panama are complicated by a factor tht doesn't enter into the Vietnam and Cuba equations. A treaty relinquishing perpetual U.S. sovereignty over the Canal Zone won't be worth the paper it's written on util it's ratified in the Senate by a two-thirds majority. But the Executive Branch doesn't need congressional approval to recognize a foreign government, and it should proceed briskly to recognize the ones that govern in Cuba and Vietnam.

A DAY WITHOUT SUNSHINE

WASHINGTON— Pity the poor Florida orange growers. They are caught in a quandary since Anita Bryant's victory against homosexual rights in Dade County. The orange growers pay Miss Bryant $100,000 a year to push Florida orange juice, a job that she has done magnificently.

Anita Bryant meant orange juice and orange juice meant Anita Bryant. It is this instant celebrity identification that sponsors dream of. When you speak of Bob Hope, you're supposed to think of Texaco; mention Joe Namath and people are supposed to have a vision of pantyhose. Danny Thomas goes together with Maxwell House coffee; and, recently, when you see a picture of former Sen. Sam Ervin, it is hoped your first thought is of an American Express credit card.

The problem in Florida is that when people now see Anita Bryant on television, the first thing that comes to mind is "gay," not as in breakfast but as in "homosexual."

The Florida orange juice people are not interested in selling homosexuals. That's not their business. A majority, I would guess, are sympathetic wtith Miss Bryant's stand on the issue, but the trouble with fighting homosexuals is that it doesn't sell orange juice.

First of all, no one knows how many homosexuals there are in this country because, despite all the publicity, many of them have still not come out of the closet.

Secondly, there are no figures on how many of them drink orange juice. But there are presumably enough of them to hurt the sale of Florida oranges. A sudden switch to California orange juice by gay people in this country could cost the Florida orange grove owners millions of dollars.

At the same time, the Florida orange juice industry is aware that if Anita Bryant is fired there could be a backlash from the heterosexuals in this country who would boycott Florida oranges in protest.

Market surveys indicate that heterosexuals are still the largest consumers of orange juice and drink it not only for its taste but also for its vitamins and the stamina it provides them. The Florida orange industry can't afford to lose the heterosexual orange juice drinkers if they expect to stay in business.

There is a solution to the problem, which I hesitate to suggest, since I don't want to get involved in the controversy. But I will because I believe the Florida orange growers need all the help they can get.

What the Florida orange industry could do is break down its TV budget. Half of it would go to Miss Bryant to continue pushing Florida orange juice to the "straight" people, and half would go to a gay spokesperson who would appeal to the homosexual drinkers. It would mean cutting Miss Bryant's fee to $50,000 a year, so the gay person would get paid the same as she does. But at the same time, Miss Bryant would only be required to make half the number of TV commercials.

It seems to me that this would satisfy everyone. The heterosexuals would be pleased to see that Miss Bryant was still selling orange juice, and the gays would be delighted to have finally broken through on big-time television. Florida orange juice consumption would have to go up because the TV commercials would appeal to everyone, regardless of race, religion or sexual preference.

Of course, the advertising agency for the Florida orange growers would have to find a gay spokesperson who could sing as well as Miss Bryant. But that shouldn't be a problem. Many of our finest performers come from the gay community and would be happy to supplement their income by doing orange juice commercials.

I would do it myself, but unfortunately I can't carry a tune.

IRANIAN JUSTICE MIGHT BE JUST WHAT THE U.S. NEEDS

By JACK ANDERSON and Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — Not long ago, the Shah of Iran spoke to Chief Justice Warren Burger about modernizing the judicial processes in his country. Apologetically, the Shah explained that Iran's system of justice was primitive. In the villages, he said, disputes were resolved by councils of elders. There were no courts, no lawyers, no judicial review.

The Chief Justice confided afterward that he would like to send a legal team to Iran to investigate village justice. The American experts, he suggested, might learn something.

Burger has become increasingly dismayed with the complex legal system in the United States. The lawyers are entangling the populace in litigation, bogfing down the courts and substituting legal manipulation for justice.

"The harsh truth," he warned the American Bar Association last month, "is that ... we may well be on our way to a society overrun by hordes of lawyers, hungry as locusts, and brigades of judges in numbers neiver before contemplated."

Across the land, lawyer slurk behind the bushes waiting to pounce upon the passers-by, drag them into court and drain them of their assets. Most lawsuits benefit only the lawyers, who collect fat fees and leave both parties worse off.

Attorneys also dominate the government. The founding fathers intended that Congress, for example, should be representative of the people. But the lawyers have taken it over; they hold more than 300 of the 535 seats.

Attorneys also populate the various federal agencies, boards, commissions, committees and councils. Both in and out of government, Washington has more lawyers per capita than any city in the world. The lawyers in government produce complex legislation and regulations, which create business for the lawyers out of government.

Today, the confused citizen needs an attorney to make out a tax return, sell a home, settle an estate and protect him from the proliferating pitfalls that the government lawyers produce. Here are our observations:

-- The nation is overrun with lawyers who, lured by the scent of the green, congregate where the big money is. They thrive, for example, on corporate law. Indeed, many a corporate president began as the general counsel. Yet the nation's 29 million poor are suffering from a lawyer shortage. An estimated 85 per cent of their legal needs are still unmet.

-- All too often, the legal decision goes to the client with the most money. He can outmaneuver and outlast his poorer opponent in the courts. It is not uncommon, corporate attorneys tell us, for complex cases to drag on for more than a decade. The client who has to count his money may not survive the legal skirmishing. The poor often cannot afford to seek redress of grievances for even the most basic injustices.

-- Most lawyers price themselves out of the average American's range. Their hourly rates start around $35, quickly reach $100 and continue on up into the stratosphere. Once the eminent Washington attorney, Clark Clifford, made a rare appearance on Capitol Hill for Charles Revson, the head of Revlon cosmetics. Clifford coached hhis client carefully, then sat silently at his side while Revson answered congressmen's questions. For this appearance, Clifford sent Revson a bill of $25,000.

-- The legal processes have become encumbered with procedural rigmarole -- unnecessary routines that are designed more to enrich the lawyers than to serve the public. It costs a small fortune, for example, to clear the title for a home purchase. And the probate processes have become so encrusted that the attortneys often wind up with a greater share of an inheritance than the heirs.

--Attorneys are supposed to be society's peacemakers and problem solvers. Too many devote themselves to the opposite; they are troublemakers who create problems. They operate on the theory, apparently, that the more trouble they can stir up, the more law business there will be. The wise judge learned Hand once remarked: "I must say that as a litigant I should dread a lawsuit beyond almost anything else short of sickness and death."

-- Most lawyers, in the opinion of the judges who watch them in action, are incompetent. Chief Justice Burger has noted: "Many judges in general jurisdiction trial courts have stated to me that fewer than 25 per cent of the lawyers appearing before them are genuinely qualified."

-- Some 28,000 young graduates will pour out of the nation's law schools this year. This is nerly double the number who graduated 10 years ago. With few exceptions, they are licensed, according to Burger, "without the slightest inquiry into their capacity to perform the practical functions of a counselor or an advocate." They seek experience on the staffs of public defenders and prosecutors. The lawyers who represent the poor and the public, therefore, are often still in the process of learning how to try cases.

-- Lawyers profess that they regulate and discipline themselves. The truth is, however, that the disciplinary machinery is more often used to protect them from public embarrassment. The late Supreme Court Justice Tom Clark reported after an investigation in 1970 that professional misconduct went virtually unregulated in most of the 50 states.

Coal Still King:
Crises on Coal and Rail Fronts will rocket all prices, brake economy

WASHINGTON — American Presidents have been told to go to hell -- sometimes Shakespeareanly, sometimes scatologically -- when they attempted to stonewall coal and railroad strikes. Mostly they went to the Supreme Court or to Congress. That's happened in war and peace.

And the public, hypnotized by Tom "Terrific" Seavers through the years, suddenly wondered why the commuter trains weren't running or their communities were threatened with brownouts.

So I'll Paul Revere for you this time. Heavy odds are now that coal and rail crises are speeding in on us. Probably national strikes. And therefore the cost of cooking, eating, heating and just simple living will rocket up by year's end.

This past week's national coaldiggers' union election means that the "new" miner, with a quickly lowering average age of 37 years, will soon be earning some $650 to $700 a week in straight time wages and fringes.

That's why young men and women, of an average age of 27 years and under, are flocking into the coalfields at a fantastic rate, considering the grimy fact that most of them know they will work deep in the pits.

Within a few hours of his election victory last Wednesday, United Mine Workers' president, 54-year-old Arnold Miller, dubbed the coal mine industry "the enemy." And he promised his 167,000 active coaldiggers the best new contract ever. Since the average miner already costs the pit operators over $100 daily, and the pact about to be negotiated will follow other recent industrial collective bargaining patterns of 33 to 40 per cent increases over three years, there could well be coaldiggers taking more than $700 weekly soon enough.

In rank-and-file miners' milieus there's intense talk about getting special hazard pay for underground work; more time off, with pay in the United Auto Workers' tgradition; an increase in the pension and welfare royalty payments per ton, contributed by the operators, which in many areas are the big steel companies; and the united demand for the right to strike legally, locally to settle grievances.

No petty cash all this. In the year ending June 30, 1976, the coal companies contributed $589.2 million to the pension and welfare funds.

And the odds that the mine owners will sign such contracts with President Miller are about as good as the Atlanta Braves' chances for the pennant. So, forgive the analogy, more strikes are expected in the coalfields than in the nation's ball parks this season.

But in the end -- meaning next winter -- the price of coal will up. This will pressure prices in steel, therefore in auto and trucks, therefore in deliveries of all kinds and therefore in the cost of living and in the cost of running a thousand cities. Just watch.

Arnold Miller will have to deliver to his new breed rank-and-filers or lose control, despite hsi election victory. And they are a new breed.

"The new young people coming in are typical of their generation, well-educated, aggressive, questioning and highly vocal," says one coal industry insider. "Since this work force will . . . lack the tempering impact of the middle-age group, dealing with them will be exceedingly difficult."

Though the White House coal price-watchers expect 50,000 to 60,000 coaldiggers to wildcat in week-long, illegal strikes this summer, the actual climax will clamp onto the nation in December. This is just about the time the rail unions (with 456,000 members) will confront some 150 Class I lines in new contract negotiations. There may be some illegality about selective strikes which could paralyze the rails then but that's hardly been a brake on such tactics.

The railroads have just notified some unions that this time the companies don't plan to sit by and be governed by wage and work roles developed when the Union Pacific was running wooden cars through war-torn Indian territory. Further, the railroads now want a change in work rules which would enable them to get skilled workers to cross craft lines to handle any regular jobs inside the rail "shops." That's like demanding that Sen. Barry Goldwater replace George McGovern as president of the Americans for Democratic Action.

And leaning against the rails will be a new militant labor voice, 52-year-old Bill Winpisinger who becomes president of the million-member International Assn. of Machinists (AFL-CIO) on July 1. Same time Arnold Miller gets his own mine union's official returns.

There will be lots more about "Winpi" in coming months. Sufficient here to report he'll not hesitate to shut down the nation's rail lines to win wage and fringe increases for his followers.

So that's how it always begins. And these leagues are bigger than Tom Seaver's.

Today's news in brief

Vance slated to visit China

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance is going to China as the Carter administration continues its efforts to normalize relations with the government in Peking.

State Department spokesman Hodding Carter Wednesday refused to say whether Vance, who will be in Peking Aug. 22-26, will reach an agreement on normalizing relations during his trip.

Establishment of full diplomatic relations has been an objective of the past three administrations, but none has been able to come up with a politically acceptable way of dealing with Taiwan.

The United States and China seem no closer to cesolving the dispute over Taiwan than they were when their new relationship began with the visit of former President Richard Nixon to China in 1972.

Carter said six weeks ago he would move quickly to establish relations with Peking if China promises not to "punish or attack Taiwan."

Chinese officials have since rejected that condition as meddling in China's internal affairs.

Retaliatory slayings claimed

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — Ugandan refugees are bringing more reports of killing by President Idi Amin's security forces in retaliation for a plot on his life. Some of the refugees say the plot was foiled before a shot was fired.

A spokesman for the provincial commissioner at Kakamega, near the Ugandan border, reported 13 officers and civilians who crossed the frontier "said assassins on their way to kill Amin were intercepted near Entebbe without a shot being fired.

"Since then, they said, a number of military people have been killed on suspicion of being involved in the plot. ... They said that they fled from the Entebbe area because they feared their lives were in danger."

Automakers to drop Tris use

DETROIT (AP) — Chances are that upholstery in your American-made car is treated with the same fire-retardant chemical that the government banned from children's sleepwear — Tris. But the nation's automakers don't believe motorists are endangered by the upholstery containing the chemical which has been linked to some forms of cancer. As a precaution, however, they're dropping its use and hope to eliminate it entirely by next year.

Colson describes prison life

WINCHESTER, Mass. (AP) — The prisons where two former top Nixon aides began serving time this week aren't exactly country clubs, says a former top Nixon aide who did prison time. Charles Colson, who served as special counsel for Nixon, said, "living in constant noise and in overwhelming depression is like living in a terminal ward." Colson spoke to a group of high school students in this Boston suburb only hours after John Mitchell entered prison at Maxwell Air Force Base in Alabama on Wednesday, the first former U.S. attorney general to go to prison. Colson was also jailed there. Former White House chief of staff H.R. Haldeman surrendered on Tuesday at the federal prison at Lompoc, Calif.

Saccharin ban debate goes on

WASHINGTON (AP) — The head of the Food and Drug Administration is convinced saccharin poses a cancer risk to humans and should be taken off the market. But many members of Congress are equally convinced the government should wait awhile before acting. FDA Commissioner Donald Kennedy said Wednesday in a Portland, Ore., speech that a new Canadian study shows a clear link between saccharin use and the risk of cancer in men.

Senate ponders secret bomb

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate is trying to decide whether to approve funding for production of a super-secret, lethal neutron bomb designed to zero in on population centers but not buildings. The Appropriations Committee included money for the new nuclear warhead in a $1.4 billion public works and energy research appropriation bill that was approved Wednesday and sent to the full Senate.

OAS adopts U.S. resolution

ST. GEORGE'S, Grenada (AP) — The Organization of American States adopted a U.S. resolution calling on its members to put a stop to all violations of human rights on their territories. The OAS "reaffirmed its commitment to the priority of human rights and to that extent we in this hemisphere lead the world," U.S. Ambassador Gale McGee said following approval of the resolution at the final session of the organization's annual assembly. The resolution was approved by 14 of the 25 nations, one more than the majority required for adoption.

Photos may provide lead

LOCUST GROVE, Okla. (AP) — Police say they have gotten "a substantial lead which will be pursued" from photographs, showing three women at a wedding, found near the bodies of three Girl Scouts slain at a summer camp.

"We want to know how the pictures taken at a wedding far away from Locust Grove came to where we found them, how this wierdo, psychotic, if it was, had these pictures out there," a state crime bureau spokesman said.

The women in the pictures were identified Wednesday after television stations and newspapers throughout the state published the photos, which were released by the crime bureau Tuesday.

Crime bureau Director Jeff Laird emphasized that the three women "are totally innocent" of any complicity in the slayings.

He said the women "don't know a darned thing" about how the photos came to be at the camp.

The three were friends of a couple married in 1968 but did not know each other, officials said.

The three scouts, aged 8, 9 and 10, were killed on June 13 during the first night of a camping trip at Camp Scott near here. Two were beaten to death and one was strangled; their bodies were found several hundred yards from the tent they had shared. All three had been sexually molested.

Meanwhile, officials have begun taking calls from from men volunteering to help search the camp area Friday for clues.

Women were banned from the search because, officials said, no portable toilets would be available for them.

Several hundred men will be accepted for the search and given specific directions about what to look for, said Dist. Atty. Sid Wise.

He said reporters could accompany the searchers, but only if they agree to withhold the subject of the search from publication until sometime Friday afternoon.

The Daily Oklahoman identified two of the women in the wedding photographs as Peggy Walker and Ginger Cypret, both of Mangum. The third woman asked that her name not be released.

John Donley, a Weatherford lawyer speaking for the unidentified third woman, said the women were "totally shocked" that their pictures had been found at the scout camp. He said the three had been identified by the groom in the 1968 wedding.

"She's worried. It bothers her," Donley said of his client. He said the woman, a secretary, "wasn't even aware her picture was taken at the wedding."

"She's shook up. She was totally shocked when she saw the pictures in the newspaper," he said.

Some winners and losers from legislative session

By DAVID RAMSEUR
Missouri Press News

JEFFERSON CITY — Three-foot-tall mounds of unpassed bills, obsolete reports and dated memoranda were not thrown toward the high ceilings of the House and Senate chambers this year as they normally are on the last night of the session.

Missouri legislators solemnly boxed up their four-month collection of session business and quietly returned to their offices rather than throwing the mess into the air at the stroke of midnight June 15.

The failure to reach a compromise on the type and location of a new state prison clouded the end of the legislative session, but many new laws that affect Missourians were put on the books.

APPROVED

SCHOOL AID FORMULA — This revision of the present 10-year-old formula ends the reliance on property assessments as a key factor in determining aid and instead averages personal income in school districts. Rural districts will probably receive more money under the formula although no district will receive less than the previous year.

DEATH PENALTY — The state's law is modeled after those upheld by the U. S. Supreme Court which outlawed Missouri's old death penalty law. The new law provides for a dual system of trials and an automatic review of each death sentence.

CRIMINAL CODE — The massive revision of the 142-year-old code which still prohibits drunken stagecoach driving eliminates some discrepancies in crimes and punishments. The revision includes reduced punishments for prostitution and homosexual relations and new sanctions against child pornography.

ELECTION CODE — This bill establishes six statewide election days but additional elections will be allowed for such votes as the issuance of bonds after emergencies. The bill becomes effective Jan. 1, 1978, when signed by the governor.

SPEED LIMITS — The 55 mil-per-hour speed limit was extended to Missouri highways for two years. Another bill that allows second class counties to set speed limits on their county roads also was passed.

FINANCE POOLING — A constitutional amendment which must receive statewide voter approval before becoming law, the bill allows "political subdivisions" to jointly finance and operate power plants which presently are prohibited. Such plants would be regulated by the Public Service Commission which would have to approve all joint ventures and regulate the electricity rates charged.

PAY RAISES — Legislators voted themselves pay hikes and increases in the per diem they are allowed during sessions. The pay raises are from $8,400 to $15,000 a year and per diem was increased from $25 to $35 per day.

Pay raises also were approved for most heads of state agencies. Most directors' salaries will increase from $30,000 to $40,000 per year and Public Service Commissioners will receive an $8,000 annual increase to $36,000.

PUBLIC DRUNKENNESS — Intended to make for easier rehabilitation of alcoholics, the bill allows police officers to take intoxicated persons home, to a rehabilitation center or to jail for 12 hours but the person cannot be arrested.

RAPE TESTIMONY — The bill prohibits testimony regarding a rape victim's sexual history during a criminal trial.

HAZARDOUS WASTES — A Hazardous Waste Commission within the Missouri Department of Natural Resources would regulate transportation and disposal of chemically dangerous waste products.

INSURANCE "RED-LINING" — Insurance companies would be prohibited from refusing to sell insurance in high risk areas.

SWEEPSTAKES — Another constitutional amendment, if approved by voters, it would allow Missourians to participate in game sweepstakes that do not require entry fees, such as the Reader's Digest sweepstakes.

LICENSE PLATES — Personalized license plates which will bear the state motto, "Show-Me State," and cost $12 more than regular plates, will be available. Legislators, the handicapped and disabled veterans could obtain plates with special symbols under the bill.

SPEEDY TRIALS — A watered-down version of this bill will require criminal trials to be held within 120 days of arrest and arraignments within 10 days. Delays could be granted for a variety of reasons if allowed by the presiding judge.

PARENT LOCATOR — This bill allows welfare agencies to seek fathers of welfare children who do not support their children.

PESTICIDE CONTROL — Revises provisions for the certification and licensing of persons applying pesticides, creating classification for non-commercial and public applicators of pesticides.

GRAIN WAREHOUSES — This law completely revises the statutes regulating and governing grain warehouses in Missouri.

CORPORATE FARMING — This bill exempts any bank or trust company acting as an administrator or executor of a trust from corporate farming restrictions.

FAILED

Several bills of statewide interest were not passed by the General Assembly. These include:

CONFLICT OF INTEREST — The law would have required elected judges and other officials to disqualify themselves on matters in which they or their immediate families might have an interest.

Billy Carter wins 1st elective post

PLAINS, Ga. (AP) — Billy Carter, whose older brother has demonstrated a certain political knack, has finally been elected to office.

But there was little speculation about the birth of a political dynasty as the two-time loser for mayor of Plains presided over a meeting of the newly formed Plains Merchants Association on Tuesday night.

"This is the first time I've been elected to any damn thing," Carter remarked at the meeting, called to discuss the economic future of this southwest Georgia town.

No one should doze when buying bedding

Associated Press Writer

The average American spends up to a third of his life asleep, but he may know less about the mattress he's lying on than he does about products that occupy only a fraction of his time.

The National Association of Bedding Manufacturers offers a guide to some of the basics, but a spokesman for the group admits that the "consumer has to rely on the knowledge of the retail salesman."

Mattress construction is a complicated process, the spokesman said. All you get to see of the product is the cover.

"Primarily you buy on feel," said the bedding industry spokesman. "The big thing today is a firm mattress. The idea is to get the firmest support possible without it feeling like a board."

You have to take the word of the salesman and the guarantee of the manufacturer that the mattress will feel the same a year from now as it does today.

A little bit of knowledge will go a long way, however, in helping you to ask the right questions. (The salesman should know the answers about construction and quality; if he doesn't you might want to switch salesmen or stores.)

Mattresses and boxsprings generally range in size from the twin — 38 inches wide by 75 inches long — to the king — 76 inches wide and 80 inches long.

Most experts, including the manufacturers, say you should buy a new boxspring whenever you choose a new mattress. If the mattress is worn out, the spring probably is due for replacement as well, they claim.

There are two basic types of mattresses: innerspring and foam. The foam mattresses are less expensive; they generally do not last as long, however.

The foam mattress consists of a core of cushiony urethane foam — either the standard type or a new, high-resiliency variety for increased support — and a synthetic cover. Combinations of foam may be laminated together to produce varying density.

The innerspring mattress is more complicated. It consists of springs, a layer of insulation — not the kind you use to save energy in your home, cushioning and a cover.

The standard double mattress (53 by 75 inches) has a minimum of about 250 coils. Some varieties may have up to 1,000 coils, but the wire used for the coils is likely to be lighter in weight. The bedding manufacturers' spokesman said the optimum construction generally is considered to include 312 coils of 13½ gauge wire. Ask the salesman or check manufacturers' literature to find out the number of coils and the strength of the wire before you buy.

The springs are covered with an insulator, either a pad of some kind or netting or a wire arrangement, designed to prevent the springs from sticking into your back and to keep the cushioning material from sinking into the center of the coils. Some manufacturers use extra insulation to increase the firmness of the mattress; others rely on a heavier gauge wire.

The final component is the cover, also known as the ticking. The manufacturers group says all tickings today are made of synthetics — partly to meet federal flammability standards for resistance to ignition by a lighted cigarette and partly for cost reasons.

Malden hires new policeman

MALDEN -- Robert Thompson became Malden's newest policeman Monday night when he was hired by a unanimous vote of the City Council.

Thompson, 27, was hired under the federally- funded Public Service Employment (PSE) program. The city will be reimbursed for his government-established monthly salary of $550. Thompson, who formerly lived in Malden and attended school here, was spearated from active Army duty in May. He has undergone nine weeks of police training at Ft. Ord, Calif. in addition to other instruction.

The new policeman, who is married, was hired on a 90- day probationary, or trial, basis.

In another police- related matter, councilmen voted to pay all auxiliary policemen for hours worked in excess of 15 per month. Councilman Leroy Evans was absent.

In other business:

The Council decided to have the city attorney write the State Highway Department headquarters at Sikeston to inform it that Malden does not wish to accept the department's offer of the old Highway 25 property between J Highway and the north end of the new bypass. Otherwise, Malden would be responsible for maintaining that part of the highway.

Sims' Carpet Service's bid of $252.75 for carpet and linoleum (installed) at Fire Station No. 1 was accepted by the Council. The next lowest bid was from Malden furniture Company ($309.50); Wilcoxson and Sons Furniture of Malden bid $363. All bids included installation.

The Council convened in a four- minute closed session at the end of its regular meeting to discuss personnel matters.

Camera club organized in Sikeston

Sixteen persons attended the first meeting Wednesday night of a newly organized camera club in Sikeston.

The program, held at Security Federal Savings and Loan, started with a presentation of slides from various members. Each member explained the techniques used taking the slides.

Officers elected were: Dr. Forrest A. Stepp, president. Margaret Scott, vice president, and Nancy Byrd, secretary treasurer.

Following the slide presentation a lengthy discussion was held ona variety of subjects concerning photography and film. Dr. Stepp ordered several photography text books for members and Scott Matthews presented a pamphlet on an upcoming short couse photography school.

Next month's meeting will be July 27 at 7:30 p.m. at the Security Federal Savings and Loan community room. Anyone interested in photography is invited.

Amazing Amazons

Amazon is Greek for "without breast." Greek mythology told of a race of female warriors living without men, sending away or killing any sons born. The women had their right breasts burned off so they could more easily draw the bow. The word is used today when speaking of brawny women.

Former Byrds leader puts new band together

PASSAIC, N.J. (AP) — Roger McGuinn is back.

McGuinn was the leader of The Byrds, America's answer to the Beatles in the rock music boom of the mid-1960s. The Byrds bridged the gap between traditional folk music and British rock and reached stardom with such songs as "Mr. Tambourine Man," "Eight Miles High" and "Turn, Turn, Turn."

Despite endless personnel changes, The Byrds became favorites of a growing FM radio audience in the late 1960s with their electronic experimentation and synthesis of country and rock sounds. McGuinn disbanded the group in 1972 but failed as a solo act, both on stage and on record.

So he's assembled a permanent band, cut a strong new album and hit the road with a stage show featuring many of the old Byrds tunes that first brought him fame.

"I wrote a lot of those songs. I feel that they're my music, not Byrds music," McGuinn said while relaxing after a performance here.

"This is the first time since The Byrds that I can say I've got a band. The others were just backup groups, just people I picked up to go on tour with. And these are the finest players I could find. Rick Vito is from (John) Mayall, Greg Thomas was Leon Russell's drummer and bassist Charlie (Harrison) is from Leo Sayer."

McGuinn calls the band Thunderbyrd, tying in his Byrd days with his participation in Bob Dylan's "Rolling Thunder Revue." After two months of playing together, their sound is, well, like the middle period Byrds.

There are no smoke bombs or laser illusions on stage — just a solid four-piece band playing top-notch rock music.

"We're shooting for the top, trying to really do it — going for the success of The Eagles and others up there. Really going for it," he said.

The level of success may depend on whether the band can hit the AM charts The Byrds scorned late in their career. McGuinn is pinning his hopes on "American Girl," a pleasant rocker with a strong chorus that features Vito's stinging lead guitar and the jingle-jangle sound of McGuinn's distinctive 12-string guitar.

"My management and I decided it was to our mutual advantage to shoot for a Top 40 hit. There's nothing wrong about that; the Beatles and Rolling Stones were hit groups, and Fleetwood Mac and The Eagles are doing it now.

McGuinn's career reflects the changing music scene of the last 15 years.

Foster Grandparent program importances explained to Sikeston B&PW Club

Jolene Walker

Mrs. Jolene Walker, 711 Hickory, director of the Foster Grandparent Program, was the guest speaker at the Sikeston Business and Professional Women's Club monthly meeting held Wednesday night at the El Capri Restaurant, Highway 61 North.

Mrs. Walker explained to the group that valuable resourse we have in the Older American and how her program enables certain programs in the Charleston, Poplar Bluff and Sikeston areas to use these resourses. In return the retired person, who is one limited limited income, will receive a yearly physical, one hot meal per day, insurance and a small income.

Presently Mrs. Walker's program has 52 Foster Grandparents in the seven county area which she servies.

Cookbook Leftovers

Ingredients to a recipe were incorrectly given in Wednesday's edition of a recipe submitted by Mrs. Juanita Rogers of Morehouse. The recipe for Dang Good Pie should have read as follows:

3 tablespoons flour
1½ cups sugar
1 cup crushed pineapple, drained
1 cup cocoanut flakes
9 inch unbaked pie shell

Melt butter and mix with the remaining ingredients. Pour filling into unbaked pie shell and bake one hour at 350 degrees or until set and brown.

Erma the family mediator

By ERMA BOMBECK

One of the chores that was never mentioned in my job description when I became a wife and mother was that of mediator between the Family Doctor and the Family Sickee.

You know how it goes. Your child comes in from play and says, "I don't feel well. My legs feel like they got little needles all over them, my head hurts real bad, I got a big pain right here on my side, and I can't see real well. Everything turns black and I'm dizzy and burning up and then I got this real chill and sometimes there's a ringing in my ears and..."

As you herd the child into bed, your blood turns to ice as you hurriedly call the doctor.

"Could you bring him to the office around 3:00?" he asks.

Every maternal hair on your neck stands up. "You are assuming that he will last until 3:00. I want you to come here!"

Sometimes my performance is so convincing a doctor will actually stop off on his way home. He enters the room of the Sickee.

At the sight of the doctor the kid starts to move about like a Japanese volleyball team. He springs into the air, falls on the mattress on his face, giggling and laughing, hiding behind the pillow, bring out his pupets, turning on the record player, dancing and singing into the doctor's stathscope.

"Is this the child who is going to that big playroom in the sky?" he asks tiredly. Then turning to the child he asks, "Is there a pain here?"

The child falls down giggling.

"What about here?"

He shakes his head no until I think he will screw himself into the bed.

"A laxative should do it," says the doctor, closing the bag.

My husband is no better. After he relates all his symptoms to me, I relate them to the doctor and then report, "The doctor says he would like to meet you in the emergency ward of the hospital."

"That's ridiculous," he says. "I'm not in THAT much pain. What did you tell him?"

"I used your words, 'You're young. I want you to marry again.'"

"And for THAT he wanted me to come to the hospital?"

I have been put in the middle so many times that I am sometimes reluctant to call the doctor. The last time my son complained of a knee injury I put it aside for a day or so. When we finally got to the doctor he said, "Didn't the boy complain?"

"Actually, he did," I said, "but I thought I could pull it off as the final billing date ends the 30th."

I have seen the look he gave me on only one other occasion. It was when Gen. Yoshijiro Umeza tried to shake Gen. Douglas MacArthur's hand when Japan surrendered at the end of World War II.

POLLY'S POINTERS

DEAR POLLY — My Pet Peeve is with the pockets that most clothing manufacturers put in men's work pants. We pay from fifteen to twenty dollars for each pair of such pants and after three weeks of wear the pockets are of no use at all. It's as if the material used for them is almost like cheesecloth. The pants are well made but the pockets come apart. — MRS. G.F.

DEAR POLLY — I have made good use of the side of my refrigerator that stands out away from the wall. A large hook was put in the wall and all of my appliance cords hang on it. They are easy to get to and not all mixed up as they might be in a drawer. — JEAN.

DEAR POLLY — The Pointer in your column about removing paint from the hands with turpentine or kerosene is true but either of these may irritate the skin. The same result can be obtained by using baby oil. It is kind to the skin and more pleasant to smell. We always keep a bottle even though there has been no baby around for 20 years. — CHARLES.

Grandma's Corner

By Jill Corti

Today we will pass along some helpful kitchen hints for those of us who often spill things in the oven or haven't quite figured out how to make non lumpy gravey.

Foods that have boiled over in the stove or oven will not smoke or emit odors if covered with salt.

Lumpy gravy can be avoided by adding a little salt to the flour before adding the water and stirring with afork.

Oil paintings may be cleaned by washing very carefully with warm water and milk. Allow to dry without rinsing.

Cotton fabrics may be kept from running by adding a little black pepper to the suds before washing.

Lemon or orange peel rubbed over pans and silverware will remove unpleasant odors.

Dear Ann Landers

Reader has 'klutz' complex

Dear Ann Landers: My problem in three words--I'm a klutz. The embarrassment and shame I've suffered from spilling things, breaking things, dropping things, stumbling, falling--is more than I can take.

Everything I do screams "KLUTZ." When I shuffle cards, serve a glass of water, walk into a room, I feel like a clumsy ox--inept and left-footed.

Life would be a breeze instead of a hurricane if I were more graceful--or at least a little better coordinated. Please don't send me to ballet school, just tell me how to develop poise at home.--Klutzy Carol (Age 19)

Dear Carol: Most klutziness in the result of (a) hurrying,, (b) being absent-minded--no concentration on what one is doing.

Slow down and make a conscious effort to do every small thing as gracefully as possible. You're bound to see an improvement, Lovey.

P.S. Can it be that you are subconsciously klutzing it up a little to call attention to yourself? Some people would rather be laughed at than ignormed. Think of these things.

Dear Ann Landers: A continuing family problem prompts my first letter to your column, regarding the writer from Philadelphia who keeps sending gifts and checks and gets no thanks or acknowledgments from nieces and nephews.

Out of a family of four children we have a 12-year-old boy (I can sit down and guide him through the thank you's, no problem), an 18-year-old girl who responds warmly, and promptly, without prodding, a 22-year-old who responds warmly, but not too promptly, and a 20-year-old son who stubbornly refuses to write a thank-you note, no matter how I beg or plead and try to shame him into it.

When I see a relative who has sent a gift to this impossible boy I make some feeble attempt to apologize. It goes against my grain but I feel I must say something.

If you have a solution to the problem I would love to hear it. In the meantime, I resent the accusation that I did not raise him properly. He knows what to do. He just won't do it.--Not Guilty In Endwell, N.Y.,.

Dear Not Guilty: Can it be that your 20-year-old clod refuses to acknowledge gifts because he likes to bug you?

I suggest the following: When a gift for him arrives, phone the sender--tell him or her it was a lovely, thoughtful gesture.

Also say, "Unfortunately the young man is very remiss when it comes to acknowledging gifts and this , of course, distresses me. Please don't send him another gift ever again, if he fails to say thank you for this one. I, as his mother, would consider it a great favor."

Dear Ann Landers: A friend of mine is married to the youngest son of a large family. Her husband, Ferdinand, has five brothers--all older. Their wives seem to produce nothing but girls. At last count Ferdinand and Cheryl had 17 nieces.

Cheryl became pregnant recently. She is determined to have a boy and has been eating herbs and root food (carrot, turnips and beets) like mad. Her grandmother says this will produce a male child. True or false?--Big Q

Dear Q: The sex of a child is determined at the moment of conception. Whatever she is carrying has already been decided.

Confused about what's right and what's wrong in today's "new morality"? You're not alone. If you want honest, down-to-earth information on your sex questions, read Ann Landers's new booklet, "High School Sex and How to Deal With It--A guide for Teens and Their Parents." Send 50 cents in coin plus a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

Stanky decides to quit Texas

MOBILE, Ala. (AP) — Eddie Stanky, feeling homesick for Mobile, has quit as manager of the Texas Rangers one day after joining the club, it was reported today.

Mel Lucas, athletic director of the University of South Alabama, confirmed a report by the Mobile Press that Stanky was returning to Mobile today and leaving pro baseball.

He said Stanky's wife, Dickie, told him of the sudden change of plans and "she was shocked as well as all of us."

In Minnesota, where the Rangers were scheduled to play the Twins today, the Rangers were reportedly huddling, with an announcement expected to come out of the meeting.

Stanky, 59, startled many of his friends when he decided to leave South Alabama, where he has coached baseball for nine years, and return to the big leagues replacing Frank Lucchesi as manager of the Rangers.

Stanky joined the club Wednesday and was a winner in his debut—a 10-8 victory over the Twins.

Saints call off pair

Work conflicts, costing the Sikeston Saints at least four starting players, have forced the postponement of Saturday's scheduled doubleheader with the Villa Reds out of St. Louis. The game will not be rescheduled.

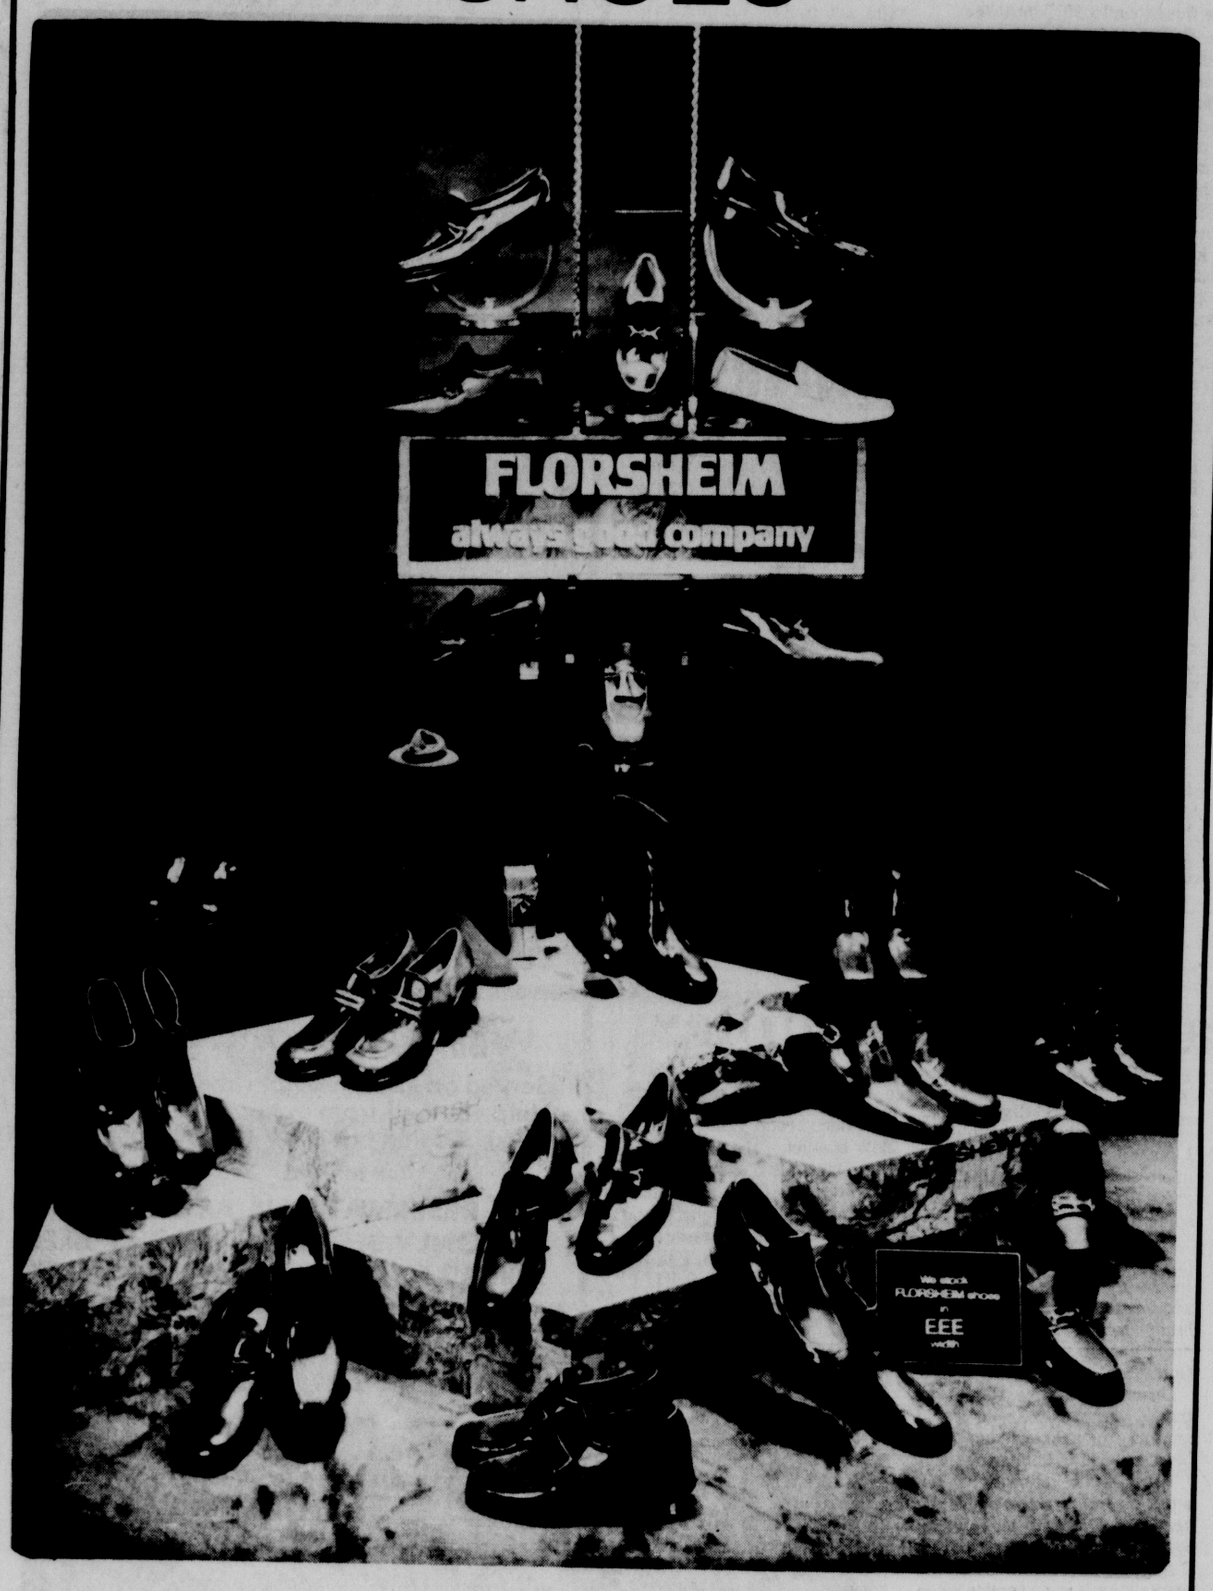

The Reds played last year as Clark's Funeral Home and won the NBC state tournament.

The Saints management expressed regret over the loss of the games. "Our pitchers needed the work," said Dale Forbis, "especially after the cancellation of our game Wednesday."

Moore runs no-hit string to 16 plus

Last night was yet another fine evening of Little League action at the Sikeston Complex. National League action was highlighted by a 5-3 victory by Pizza Inn over Lions. In this game, Mike Moore threw a six inning no-hitter to run his string to 16 and two-thirds innings of hitless baseball. In fact, no batter has gotten a hit off Moore this season.

In the first game red hot Kiwanis beat second place Legion 9-8. Kiwanis collected ten hits off Legion pitching and scored three big runs in the fifth to assure the win. Legion had scored five in the top of the fifth to take a one run lead and scored once in the sixth but fell short. Orlando Butler was pinned with the loss for Legion while Bobby Stinnitt was the winner.

Moore's no-hitter plus his 2-for-2 batting was the key to Pizza Inn's victory. Lions threw their best as Marland Beaudean started and got the loss. The win for Pizza Inn gives them a mark of 8-0 and sole possession of first place. Lions remain in a tie for second with Legion and Kiwanis at 5-3.

Musial League had its share of fine action also. Bank of Sikeston came within an eyelash of beating first place Rotary but couldn't get the big hit and lost 9-8. Bank of Sikeston scored eight times in the first two innings but was shut out from then on. Rotary scored five times in the fourth, then sent the winning run across in the bottom of the final inning. Billy Pennington was the eventual winner for Rotary and Joy McMillen was the loser for Bank of Sikeston.

The second game of Musial action saw Meredith Realty beat Hart's Bread 8-2. Winning pitcher Jim Perkins rapped a double and two singles to pace the Meredith hitting. Mike Goergen was tagged with the loss for Hart's.

The wild American race got even closer as Collins Realty, tied for first place, was knocked off by Moore's Firestone 8-7. The first two saw both teams score all their runs and Scott Carmody get the final victory for Moore's. Moore's had 14 base raps with winner Carmody and Toney Wrather having a perfect 3-for-3 night. On the other hand, Collins collected 16 base knocks but failed to put them together. Barry Alberson and Riley Davis went 4-for-4 to pace the Collins hitting attack. Alberson looked good with the bat but was the losing pitcher.

Second place Ziegenhorn was knocked off by Bridger Plumbing 12-11. Bridger collected their second win this week their only wins of the season. Bridger did not lose their composure as Ziegenhorn scored ten times in the fourth to take a 11-10 lead. Bridger simply held Ziegenhorn in the fifth and scored two of their own in the sixth to win the game. Tracy Evans grabbed the win with Brett Arsta taking it on the chin.

Triangle overcomes walks

Triangle Industries hurlers gave up 17 walks against the Jaycees Wednesday night, but the league leaders still managed to hold on to down their opponents 23-22 in the wildest gave in the Sikeston Womens and Girls Softball Association.

The Jaycees had only three hits in the game, but capitalized on the wildness of the Triangle pitchers to score 22 times, including 16 in the fourth inning that brought them to within two runs after trailing 20-2 going in.

Triangle hitters pounded out 12 hits in support of Simpson and Pobst. Pobst got credit for the hurling victory, starting the game and ten coming in to the mound again later on.

Dawn Hurley ripped three hits as Kiwanis defeated Sikeston IGA 15-5 in Major Division play. Throgmorton held IGA to only three hits while recording the victory.

Brown and Hart slugged three hits apiece as First National topped Mid-Delta Insurance 18-14 in another Major Division contest. A seven-run explosion by the winners in the third provided them with the cushion they needed as Vangilder earned the mound triumph. Losing pitcher Shumpert had three hits to lead the losing cause for Mid-Delta.

Nastase survives 2nd-round tester

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) – Ilie Nastase has done it again.

The antics of the fiery Romanian on court Wednesday as he scrambled his way through to the third round were as wild as the time two years ago when he grabbed a Wimbledon fan's umbrella and took it on court with him — all to urge the umpire to halt play in a light mist.

Do any of the childish tantrums help the 30-year-old Nastase achieve results his artistry with a tennis racquet couldn't?

Wimbledon commentators say Nastase is the greatest player ever to come to these lawn tennis championships and fail to win. Ranked No. 6 in the world, Nastase was the losing finalist here in 1972 and 1976. He is seeded sixth this year.

Wednesday's trouble erupted in the fourth set of Nastase's match against Andrew Pattison of Rhodesia. Pattison took the first two sets 9-7, 6-3, beating Nastase at his own game with clever passing shots, dinks and cut shots.

Nastase came back to win the third set 7-5, but Pattison got a crucial 4-3 lead in the following set by breaking Nastase's serve in the seventh game.

The Romanian appeared upset at a foot fault called against him. He argued with the linesman and umpire, then ducked behind the green canvas surrounding the No. 2 court, to the bewilderment of his opponent and the delight of the packed crowd.

Wimbledon referee Fred Hoyle was summoned and Nastase was warned to play on. Some 10 minutes elapsed before he resumed play, and the game quickly swung his way. He broke Pattison's service to even the games at 4-4. More antics followed — complaining about the state of the grass and the noise in the crowd — and one spectator yelled: "Shut up and play tennis." Others simply booed.

Nastase buckled down to his game, broke service in the 14th game and took the set 8-6. One service break in the fifth and final set was all he needed for the match.

But Pattison refused to come to the net to shake hands.

"I think he bahaved abominably," said the Rhodesian. "He was breaking the rules of the game that play must be continuous, and insulting and abusing the umpire and linesmen. He did it at a very crucial stage when I was leading with a service break. It was no coincidence."

But Nastase had an explanation for the whole episode when he met reporters, and showed no signs of repentance.

Shockley's eagle costs Godwin Amateur lead

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — Stewart Shockley said he just couldn't believe it and it probably seemed equally as unbelievable to Buddy Godwin.

Shockley sank a 160-yard two iron shot on the par four 17th hole for an eagle Wednesday to capture medalist honors with a six under par 138 in the Missouri Amateur Golf Tournament.

Shockley, a Kansas City golfer who won medalist honors three weeks ago in the Kansas Amateur, was in the same foursome with Godwin, a Poplar Bluff golfer who was one stroke up going into 17. Godwin parred 17 and bogeyed 18 to finish two back at 140.

Shockley led the opening round Tuesday with a 68, two strokes better than Godwin's opening day performance. At the end of the front nine Wednesday, Shockley was two strokes down for the tournament but he bettered Godwin on 10 and 14 to tie. Godwin pulled ahead with a birdie on 14, but it was all over after Shockley's second shot on 17.

The ball bounced once on the fringe and dove straight into the hole without touching the pin.

"I just couldn't believe it," Shockley said. "I hit it low just enough to make it bite. It had a lot of action."

Two strokes behind Godwin was Jim Holtgrieve of St. Louis with a 142, followed by Bruce Hollowell of Springfield with a 143.

Dennis Goettell of Carthage, who was second with a 70 Tuesday, shot a 74 Wednesday to finish with a 144.

The best round Wednesday was fired by Fred Copeland of Columbia who got a 69 to finish with a 145. He was tied with Steve Bush of Blue Springs.

The championship round of the tournament is scheduled for Saturday.

Here are the qualifiers after Wednesday's second round of the Missouri Amateur Golf Tournament on the par 72 Columbia course.

Deer season is Nov. 19-27

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Missouri Conservation Commission has set Nov. 19-27 for the 1977 deer season, but has instituted slightly more restrictions in some areas from the 1976 season.

The archery season will be identical to the 1976 season, from Oct. 1 through Dec. 31 with one deer of either sex permitted, except that it will be closed during the Nov. 19-27 gun season.

There also will be several historic weapon and archery hunts with details to be set later, the commission said.

Units one in northwest Missouri, four in western Missouri, 10 in the Bootheel and 11 in south-central Ozarks will be limited to bucks only the entire season.

Units two in north-central Missouri, seven in southwest Missouri and eight in south-central Missouri will also be limited to bucks except on Nov. 26 when any deer can be taken.

Unit three in northeast Missouri will be limited to bucks except for Nov. 26-27.

Unit five in central Missouri will have an antlerless deer quota of 2,750, unit six in eastern Missouri a quota of 1,250, unit nine in the extreme southeast Ozarks a quota of 2,100 and unit 12 in the Missouri River hills between Jefferson City and St. Louis a quota of 5,200. Bucks will also be permitted in those four units.

Dodgers rip Redbirds; look to Cincinnati

LOS ANGELES (AP) — After Los Angeles crushed St. Louis 12-1 Wednesday night, improving its lead in the National League West to 8½ games, thoughts immediately turned to what lies ahead for the Dodgers, a four-game series with the Cincinnati Reds.

"We're ready for the Reds," said Manager Tom Lasorda. "It's a tremendous feeling to leave for a big series following a game like that."

"We're certainly prepared for the series," said Steve Garvey, who knocked in five of the Dodgers' runs Wednesday night, four on his first career grand-slam homer. "After our last trip (2-5), I figured all we needed was some home cooking."

The series at Cincinnati begins tonight. Tommy John, 7-4, will pitch for Los Angeles against Tom Seaver, 8-3.

Los Angeles won seven of nine games on the homestand completed Wednesday night against Pittsburgh, Chicago and St. Louis, gaining 1½ games on Cincinnati in that span.

Tom Underwood, 3-3, took the loss in his first start for St. Louis. He was knocked out during the Dodgers' six-run fourth. Clay Carroll and John Urrea fared no better, giving up seven of Los Angeles' runs between them.

Dolly Parton parts company with Nashville

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "I'm like anybody else — I want to see what all I can do while the doin's good."

Toward that end, Dolly Parton has high-tailed it out of Nashville, where the doin's have been good, indeed, and headed for Hollywood, where she hopes they'll get even better.

The Queen of Country has set her sights on the pop-rock market, an audience that has been increasingly willing to lend an ear to the Nashville product. Other stars — Linda Ronstadt, Olivia Newton-John — have found the going quite lucrative once they crossed the dimming country-pop boundary.

"I want to keep my country audience," Dolly says, "but I want to try to appeal to another following that I have had for quite some time (the denim and dope set). I have never really exercised that area. I've never gone to where they could see me or put out the kind of records they want to hear."

Dolly didn't falter when she made up her mind she wanted to explore greener fields. She booked a six-week tour taking her to some of the country's better known rock-oriented watering holes — including the Roxy here, San Francisco's Boarding House and The Bottom Line in New York.

She gave the pink slip to her Nashville agent in favor of a slick Hollywood firm and released an album, "New Harvest, First Gathering," which, though not quite rock, isn't exactly haystacks and fiddles, either.

And in what she calls her most "hurtful" move, Dolly fired her Travelin' Family Band, a collection of country kinfolk she says couldn't play the kind of music she wanted to make, and hired Gypsy Fever, a group more suited for her plans.

"Of course, the Travelin' Family Band, they were made up mostly of relatives," she says, "and my family and me were so close.

Supreme Court refuses to review libel ruling

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court Monday refused to review a lower court's ruling that libel suits against newspapers may be tried in state courts far from the paper's home base and predominant circulation area.

The justices let stand a ruling that said the Times Mirror Co., publisher of the Los Angeles Times, can be sued for libel in Wyoming by two political figures in that state.

In seeking Supreme Court review, attorneys for the newspaper said the lower court's decision would have a "chilling impact" on freedom of the press.

In a July 5, 1974 article about crime in Wyoming and other western states, the Times reported that Donald Ray Anselmi, state Democratic party chairman, and Raymond B. Whitaker, a former state Democratic chairman, had testified before a federal grand jury. The article said the two had been asked if they bought guns in Wyoming which they knew had been stolen in California.

The article also said that federal prosecutors were trying to determine if Anselmi and Whitaker were "involved in more serious matters."

In 1975, Anselmi and Whitaker sued the Times Mirror Co. for libel. Information in the Times article was carried on the wires of The Associated Press and United Press International. Both news services were named as defendants in the libel suit, along with the Denver Post and Cheyenne Newspapers, publisher of newspapers in that Wyoming city.

Proceedings in the state libel case, however, have been delayed pending the Times' appeal challenging the jurisdiction of Wyoming's courts.

A federal judge in Wyoming ruled that the state courts could not hear the case but his decision was reversed by the 10th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

That court said, in part, that because the information for the articpe was gathered by Times' reporters who traveled to Wyoming and the article had impact in Wyoming, state courts could handle the libel suit.

Less than 10 copies of the Los Angeles Times are delivered to Wyoming subscribers each day, and the Times maintains no office or staff in the state.

In its appeal to the Supreme Court, the Times said that if it were subjected to suits "in areas of the United States and the world inconvenient for its California location...the financial and time burdens thereby imposed would severely inhibit the ability of the newspaper to perform its function."

Times' attorneys argued that past Supreme Court rulings in freedom-of-the-press cases which have protected newspapers from harassing lawsuits which could make them become less willing to cover controversial topics.

Canning tomatoes safe if done right

WASHINGTON (AP) — Government scientists say "if proper procedures are used" home gardeners can look forward to canning their own tomatoes without fear of them developing a deadly form of food poison.

The Agriculture Department said Monday a two-year study of more than 350 tomato varieties showed the fruit normally contains enough natural acid to prevent the growth of bacteria which causes botulism.

But the department said home canners can easily add citric acid or lemon juice to their tomatoes as further insurance against botulism.

The study to assess the safety of home-canned tomatoes was conducted by USDA's Eastern Regional Research Center, Wyndmoor, Pa., after questions were raised several years ago about the possibility of botulism resulting from so-called "low acid" tomatoes canned at home.

Officials said the tests "show that there has been no consist change in tomato acidity of varieties introduced over the last 25 years," although four varieties are low in acid and should not be used for home canning.

One of these, Garden State, was low enough in acid "to possibly permit growth" of Clostridium botulinusm, the organism that causes botulism. However, officials said, Garden State tomatoes, introduced in 1945, are not commercially available now.

Three other varieties — Ace, Ace 55 VF and Cal Ace — are low in acid. They were developed for commercial growers who produce tomatoes for the fresh market and should not be used for home canning.

"The scientists found no other ripe, normal tomatoes with acid levels in the range that would permit growth of C. Botulism," the department said.

The research, led by Dr. Gerald M. Sapers of the USDA's Agricultural Research Service, showed that one-fourth teaspoon of citric acid or one tablespoon of bottled lemon juice in each pint will increase tomato acidity and produce no off flavors.

Vinegar is not as effective as citric acid or lemon juice and causes an off flavor in canned tomatoes, the scientists found. A commercially prepared "acidification" table also was not as effective.

The report said that "proper procedures" begin with the selection of tomatoes that are not overripe or decayed. Further, home canners should follow "tested and approved" procedures such as in USDA's publication, HG-8, "Home Canning of Fruits and Vegetables" which may be available from county extension offices.

The publication can be ordered for 45 cents a copy from the U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402.

"What the public has been told about yellow, orange and small tomatoes being low in acid and not suitable for home canning is a fallacy," the report said. "According to the data, tomatoes of the small and light-colored varieties actually tend to be higher in acid than other tomato types.

The acid taste in some high-acid tomatoes may be masked by a high sugar content."

The environment in which tomatoes are grown or the condition of the vines can affect tomato acidity.

One sample of the Fireball variety, for example, was picked after the vines were dead. Although the tomatoes apppeared normal, 38 per cent of them were low enough to permit growth of the bacteria.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Beef, milk and peaches head the Agriculture Department's "plentiful" foods list for July.

Although beef production will be down 4 to 6 per cent from a year ago, USDA says in a monthly "food marketing alert" that next month's supply still will be larger than average for mid-year.

A smaller supply of grass-fed cattle is the main reason for beef supplies being down from a year ago, officials said Monday. Grain-fed beef, meanwhile, is more abundant.

According to USDA definition, plentiful means "more than adequate for requirements." Adequate is "enough to meet needs," and light is "less than adequate, not enough for normal needs."

Pork, broilers, eggs and turkeys, along with fresh potatoes and onions, were rated adequate for July.

An abundance of fresh peaches also is expected next month, reflecting big harvests in California and southern states. The report had this advice:

"Don't judge a peach by its blush. The red color is not always a good indicator of the ripeness. Look at the background color. It should be creamy to a very mellow yellow color. Also, look at it for well-defined creases. Fragrance can also be an indicator of ripeness."

WASHINGTON (AP) — Production of broiler-type chicks totalled nearly 336.9 million in May, the third straight month of record output by the nations's hatcheries, the Agriculture Department said Monday.

The chicks will begin reaching the consumer market later this summer as dressed broilers. Production in April was about 324.4 million birds hatched, and March output was 322.9 million.

According to USDA records, the previous high mark for broiler chick hatchings was 321.1 miillion in May of last year.

New volume added to regional library

JACKSON— An addition to the genealogy section at the Riverside Regional Library is a compliation of Alexander County, Ill. cemeteries. This volume, a gift of the editors and publisher, contains priceless information that otherwise would be lost to future generations.

The district board of the Pulaski-Alexander Soil and Water Conservation District has published the book, with information gathered and edited by Mrs. Elaine Bonifield, Miller City, Ill., and Mrs. Louise P. Ogg, Unity, Ill. "Alexander County Cemeteries, Alexander County, Ill." was printed by the Graphis Arts students of the Cairo-Egyptian Adult Center in Cairo.

In presenting the book to the Riverside Regional Library, Mrs. Bonifield stressed that it is the hope of the editors and publisher that its information be made available to interested individuals in as wide an area as possible.

Conviction upheld in Bluff murder case

SPRINGFIELD (AP)— The Missouri Court of Appeals in Springfield has upheld the Poplar Bluff conviction of John Dale Henson in the fatal shooting of his 14-year-old nephew in April of 1975.

He was sentenced to 35 years in prison on the second-degree murder conviction.

Testimony at the trial indicated Henson and a friend had been drinking most of the day the fatal shot was fired. Witnesses said Henson had gone to the trailer home where the victim and his grandmother were sleeping and badgered the woman to fix him something to eat.

The victim, 14-year-old Jackie Fletcher, at one point grabbed a butcher knife and threatened Henson who ran to his car, returned with a gun and fired one shot. The appeals court ruled it was not a case of self defense because Henson left the scene and returned to resume the hostilities.

CARILLONNEUR

CHICAGO (AP) — Before Robert Lodine sits down to play at the keyboard, he climbs 68 steps or 235 steps, depending on whether he's in St. Chrysostom Episcopal Church or in Rockefeller Chapel at the University of Chicago.

Lodine is a carillonneur and president of the Guild of Carillonneurs in America. He is also professor of organ at the American Conservatory of Music; carillonneur, organist and choirmaster at St. Chrysostom's; and carillonneur at Rockefeller Chapel.

There are but 156 true carillons in the nation, he says, the largest of them a 40,880-pound set of bells in Riverside Church in New York.

Election law revision will lead to efficiency

Jefferson City— Passage of a massive overhaul of Missouri's election laws by the General Assembly signals the way to greater efficiency in all elections, Secretary of State James C. Kirkpatrick predicts.

"Legislative approval of the comprehensive Election Act of 1977 is the culmination of 10 years of effort by concerned election authorities and legislators to enact an extensive modernization of our state's election laws," Secretary Kirkpatrick said.

"Savings, simplification and standardization are the key elements of the new law," Kirkpatrick said. "By reducing our election laws roughly in half, they will be easier to understand and administer."

The recodification effort had the support of the Missouri County Clerks Association, the urban election boards and Governor Joseph Teasdale, who made it part of his legislative package.

"This is a major accomplishment achieved by unity and a commitment to give the people of Missouri efficient election machinery," Kirkpatrick said.

The new law will take effect Jan. 1. Major provisions that will result in a substantial savings of tax money include:

--Reducing the number of election days to a maximum of six.

--Reducing the number of absentee ballots from four to two, and the number of election judges required at each polling place where paper ballots are used from six to four, the same as currently permitted for polling places with punch card devices and lever machines.

--Precincts may also be consolidated for all elections.

--Registration by mail will be extended to all counties and the City of St. Louis.

--Voter registration will close at the same time throughout the state--the fourth Wednesday before the election.

Persons who had formerly forfeited the right to vote because of violations of the law will have that right restored by the new Act once they have been released from the Department of Corrections.

As chief election official of the state, Secretary Kirkpatrick said he was especially pleased with the reduction of the filing period for candidates after the primary election of 1978. The Act provides candidates for state office may file beginning the second Tuesday in January and no later than the last Tuesday in April in the election year.

"With any bill this size, we expected some disappointments. We had hoped the legislature would keep the original language which designated a single election authority in each county. We believe, however, the Act will still significantly improve election administration.

'Skip' closes gaps between CB'ers

WASHINGTON (AP) — If you thought the "skip" was loud last summer, just turn on your CB radio again. What you're hearing is a prelude to what you may hear for the next few years.

For skip, the phenomenon by which radio waves bounce off the atmosphere back to earth hundreds or thousands of miles away, is expected to increase dramatically through 1980 or so.

Calls of "Skipland, Skipland, Skipland" already can be heard with increasing frequency on the AM mode of CB radios, seeking a response from faraway places. Calls from Florida, Missouri, Michigan.

At the same time, on the sideband side, one regularly hears "CQ-DX, CQ-DX, CQ-DX,," the code seeking a response from any distant station.

And back come the replies: From Alabama, Arkansas, Texas, California — from across the nation, Canada and Central and South America.

Occasional skip is not new to experienced CBers. But many newcomers hearing the phenomenon for the first time find it hard to understand how their sets with a normal range of 10 to 30 miles can pick up signals from stations hundreds of miles away.

For the last few years, skip has been mostly a summertime thing, fading away for the most part during the winter months. But that may change this fall, when the skip begins to be heard throughout the year.

Most CB radio signals travel along what are called ground planes, following the curvature of the earth. But some transmissions become sky waves, traveling up through the clouds.

Ordinarily, sky waves continue into space before eventually dissipating. But when the E-layer of the atmosphere — 30 to 300 miles above earth — is ionized by the sun's ultraviolet and X-ray radiation, its electrons act as antennas, retransmitting radio signals back to earth strong enough to be heard.

That ordinary, summertime skip comes and goes, occurring mostly from May through August although intermittently during winter months. It is most pronounced during the late morning hours and again during the early evening.

But the sunspots are coming, and with them year-round skip.

Sunspots are caused by massive solar explosions, resulting in bursts of ultraviolet rays. This activity occurs with varying frequency, but most often in cycles peaking every 11 years or so.

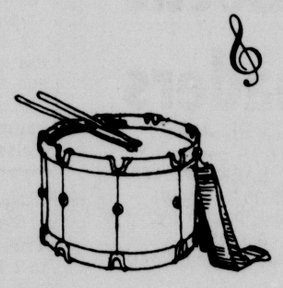

The last peak was 1968-69 and we're just coming out of its low-activity period. The next high spot is expected about 1980, with the build-up beginning this fall.

"Long may she wave o're the land of the free and the home of the brave." Doesn't a band make your blood tingle, your eyes brighten, your shoulders a little straighter — and your pride to be an American just a bit stronger? Of course it does and that's why we should display our national banner on every flag flying holiday — or any other time we are especially proud to be living in this great land — the United States of America.

200 years ago this June 14, as our fledgling country was in the most unbelievable struggle to gain its independence, our Congress established the basic design of our flag — ". . . thirteen stripes alternating red and white; that the union be thirteen stars, white in a blue field, representing a new constellation."

And so during this Birthday Year — 1977 — let's break out Old Glory and fly it high, wide and handsome. We offer at cost as a Patriotic Public Service a complete home flag kit— 3 x 5-foot double-stitched heavy cotton flag — a 6-foot jointed 2-piece staff with eagle ornament — a heavy mounting bracket with screws — all in a sturdy 2-piece storage carton with full color flag history folder. In 1931, Wiley Post and Harold Gatty took off from New York to fly around the world.

In 1938, Congress created the Civil Aeronautics Authority to regulate air traffic.

Ten years ago: President Lyndon B. Johnson and Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin held a summit meeting in Glassboro, N.J.

Also ten years ago today, the Senate voted to censure Senator Thomas Dodd, D-Conn., for allegedly using using campaign funds for his personal benefit.

Five years ago: The worst floods in years hit Pennsylvania and New York and thousands had to flee their homes.

One year ago: Angola's application for membership in the United Nations was vetoed by the United States.

Today's birthdays: Former Secretary of State William Rogers is 64. Film and stage director and choreographer Bob Fosse is 50.

Thought for today: To his dog, every man is Napoleon; hence the popularity of dogs. — British novelist Aldous Huxley.

What's the law?

The case of the menacing meat

By JACK STRAUSS, LL.B.

Donna was determined to profit from her marriage. She insured her husband's life for $25,000--without his knowing about it--and then planned to exterminate him. To that end, she broiled her husband a steak, sprinkled it generously with rat poison and served it up to him for dinner.

As fate would have it, however, Donna's husband wasn't hungry. What's more, he fed the steak to the family dog. And, within minutes, the luckless dog rolled over dead.

In short order, Donna's get-rich-quick scheme was uncovered by her husband and he sued the insurance company for issuing a policy on his life without his knowledge.

"I'm entitled to plenty!" he insisted in court." The insurance company nearly got me killed. By giving my cold-blooded wife that policy, the insurance company set me up to be laid out."

"Giving a woman a policy on her husband's life," responded the attorney for the insurance company, "is perfectly normal. What wasn't normal was Donna's motive. But we can't be blamed for that."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you make the insurance company pay damages for nearly getting Donna's husband killed?

This is how the judge ruled: YES. The judge held that it is is against public policy to issue an insurance policy on the life of a person without his knowledge or consent. Such policies, noted the judge, are illegal and dangerous as a fruitful source of crime.

Dry conditions improve little after showers

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — Missouri farmers welcomed the weekend rains after reports by the Missouri Crop and Livestock Reporting Service indicated very dry conditions across the state.

Last week's scattered showers were not enough to improve the already deteriorating crop and pasture conditions by last Saturday.

Farmers ready to plant double crop soybeans were waiting for another shower. But the lack of rain and fair weather gave farmers 5.9 suitable days for fieldwork last week.

Soil moisture supplies were rated at 90 per cent short and 10 per cent adequate.

Planting of double crop soybeans began following wheat harvest and is now 35 per cent complete. Soybeans stands in some areas showed signs of damage from herbicide carryover.

The winter wheat is now 83 per cent ripened, up nearly 40 points from last week. This compares to 48 per cent ripe at this time last year andis about two weeks ahead of normal.

Winter wheat harvest is now in full swing as 42 per cent is out of the field, about one week ahead of normal for this date.

Farmers spent much of this week's field time making hay. Second cutting alfalfa hay is now 29 per cent harvested, about one week ahead of last yeyar and normal.

Clover timothy hay harvest is now 72 per cent complete, up 20 points from last week and two weeks ahead of normal.

Last week's hot, dry weather deteriorated corn and pasture conditions. Corn was rated 5 per cent poor, 42 per cent fair, 48 per cent good, and 5 per cent excellent with several reports indicating that leaves were begining to roll under stesss.

City of Chaffee sues to annex 200 acres

CHAFFEE— Suit for the annexation of approximately 200 acres predominantly on the west and south of the present city limits was heard in Scott County Circuit Court June 14. Scott County Circuit Judge Marshall Craig was disqualified by Manuel Drumm, a Sikeston attorney representing approximately 27 property owners and merchants of the area proposed for annexation. The suit was heard by Flake McHaney, circuit judge of Stoddard and Dunklin Counties.

Chaffee City Attorney Joe Rice III represented the City of Chaffee and called approximately 15 witnesses to show reasonable cause why the area in question should be annexed and become a part of the City of Chaffee.

Chaffee citizens subpoenaed by Rice to testify for the city included . Mayor Robert Capsahw, Chaffee Signal Editor Karl von Kessel, Chaffee City Collector Charles Cunningham, businessman Joe Rice Jr., City Engineer Darryl Orr, Alderman Bob Delezene, Chief of Police Ray Olive, Jack T. Burnett, John Edward Smith, Jim Smith of Missouri Utilities Co., Director of Public Works Raymond Rowell, Chaffee City Fire Chief Bill Hagan and J. A. Chronister.

Mayor Capshaw was the first witness to take the stand in support of the suit and in response to questions by Rice described the growth and need for the extension of the city limits. Mayor Capshaw testified that the people living within the proposed annexation were already receiving services of the city such as water, sewer, police and fire protection and also received the benefits of various city installations such as the city library and the city swimming pool. The mayor testified that the people adjoining the Chaffee city limits benefited from the use of the Chaffee streets, lights and services provided by the city.

Chief witness opposing the annexation was Raymond Dame, who owns property, operates a lumber yard, has built four homes and two apartment buildings on the south edge of the city. It was the argument of the opposition to the annexation that the city does not need the additional acreage and to prove their point commented on the number of vacant lots and building sites still within the city. In a telephone conversation Dame commented that the water line into his property was laid by him and his neighbors with no cost to the city and that they pay an additional $2 for the use of the service.

Chief of Police Ray Olive testified the city needs control of Highway 77 which is becoming the main boulevard of the city. At the present time, the Chaffee City Police only have authority on the northbound lane and can only cross over the center line in pursuit when an offense has been committed within the present city limits.

Businesses and property owners who are located adjoining the city do not pay city personal taxes, are not required to have city merchants license, pay no sales tax to the City of Chaffee and also escape the city property tax.

At the conclusion of the trial the attorneys were instructed by Judge McHaney to file briefs pertaining to the annexation suit within 10 days. It is estimated, however, that the judge's decision on the case will not be handed down for a period of approximately six months.

Chamber to open land bids

DEXTER— The City Chamber of Commerce met last week and voted to sell two separate tracts of land in order to purchase additional land for future industrial growth.

The first land site, about 10 acres, is located at the corner of Harris Drive and Arvin Road. The area is zoned for I-1, Industrial.

Contractor Gary Dowdy noted that a private firm is interested in purchasing a four to six acre tract of land for light industry use if the price is reasonable.

The Chamber board voted to open bids for the land under certain specifications. This included the bid be made for a 90-day exclusive purchase option. The minimum purchase price of the land would be $30,000 payable in cash upon the exercise of the option and the furnishing of the marketable title by the Dexter City Chamber of Commerce. The option cost would be $100 which would be credited to the purchase price if the option is exercised. If the option is not exercised within 90 days after the bid, the option expires and the $100 will not be refunded.

The Board noted they reserved the right to reject any and all offers. Bids for the area will be accepted until noon Friday at the Chamber of Commerce office. The bids will be opened at 12:30 p.m. with the $100 being refunded to those bids not accepted.

Bob Robins, Chamber member, noted the money from the sale would be used to purchase additional land for future industrial growth in the Dexter area.

The board also voted to open bids on a five-acre tract of land located on Catalpa Street, just across from the office of Dr. Robert Isbell.

A legal notice listing the land sale terms is appearing in the Dexter newspaper.

In other business, the Chamber discussed the forming of a Junior Achievement Club in Dexter. The organization helps young people learn about the business world through making and selling small projects.

It was noted by Mrs. Mary Ellen Blankenship that I. I. Sparks, plant manager of Arvin, and T. S. Hill, superintendent of Dexter Schools, were in favor of forming the organization, but volunteers were needed to help with the organization. Mrs. Blankenship also mentioned that COE instructor Eugene Potthoff at Dexter High School may be interested in helping form the club.

In past meetings, members of the chamber were concerned about solicitors bothering city residents. It was discovered a 1949 ordinance (1486, section C) requires each peddler to purchase a city license for the cost of $50 per year. Newspaper and magazine salesmen are excluded from the rule, but they are required to register with the city clerk.

It was noted that the police may be summoned if the peddlers pose threats or refuse to leave the premises. The police can be called if the peddlers do not have a license.

State to enforce vaccination law

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — State health officials say there will be strict enforcement this fall of the state law prohibiting children from attending school until they received required measles and other vaccinations.

"The first instance of a child removed from school will probably occur in late October of this year," said James Donoho, director of the state Bureau of Immunizable Diseases.

"We have a law clearly designed to protect our children and we intend to use it," Donoho said as state health officials continued to mount their campaign against measles in the state.

State education officials say the law has been enforced in the past on a local basis only with no statewide effort toward enforcement.

During the first four months of this year, 571 cases of measles were reported compared to only eight cases during the same period a year ago.

The measles epidemics that have hit more than 27 counties throughout Missouri began last September, and health officials have blamed the resurgence of the disease on the failure of children to receive proper vaccinations.

Donoho said more than one million letters have been mailed to schools for distribution to parents, advising them of the state law requiring school children to be immunized or officials notified of an exemption.

He said school officials will compile lists of children who do not have immunizations, and they will be subject to removal from school until they obtain them. Legal action can be taken, Donoho said, if school officials fail to remove children as the law requires.

Ike-Mamie letters released to dispel alleged divorce plan

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Dwight Eisenhower never planned to divorce his wife, Mamie, and at one point told her not to worry "your pretty head" over rumors that he was having an affair with his secretary, their wartime correspondence shows.

The letters from the former president to his wife were released to the Los Angeles Times by the Eisenhower family in reaction to an ABC television screenplay being produced in part from a book by Lt. Kay Summersby, "Past Forgetting: My Love Affair with Dwight D. Eisenhower."

The screenplay is to be aired in several months, the Times said today.

Lt. Summersby, a member of the Women's Army Auxiliary Corps, was Eisenhower's driver and secretary in Europe and North Africa during World War II.

She wrote her book about the alleged affair in 1976 and died of cancer shortly afterward.

The Times reported, however, that the Eisenhower letters cast doubt on the accuracy of the Summersby book and on a story, attributed to former President Harry Truman, that the general planned to divorce his wife and marry Kay Summersby.

Truman's account of the alleged divorce plans were printed in a recent book by Merle Miller, "Plain Speaking: An Oral History of Harry S. Truman."

In his letters, Eisenhower repeatedly refers to his wife as "my darling" and "my sweetheart."

"This eve I just wanted to say you're the greatest gal in the world. I'll never be in love with anyone but you," the general wrote to his wife from Algiers on Feb. 20, 1943.

Five days later, he wrote again from Algiers: "I love you — don't go bothering your pretty head about WACs, etc., etc."

The 319 Eisenhower letters are scheduled to be published next year by Doubleday under the title, "Letters to Mamie."

The decision to make the Eisenhowers' wartime letters available to the Times was made by John Eisenhower as executor of his father's estate, with approval of other family members, the newspaper said.

decline.

Since then, the gap between supply and demand has widened each winter.

In the winters of 1974-75 and 1975-76, mild weather eased demand and averted any serious shortages. Gas service was temporarily curtailed, but primarily to "interruptible" customers who expect to be cut off once in a while and can adjust to it.

Last winter's severe weather increased heating needs and brought on gas shortages that forced cut-offs of service to many "firm" customers who depend on natural gas all the time.

The prolonged cold made matters even worse by blocking roads and rivers with ice and snow, hampering the transportation of substitute fuels like oil and propane to the gas-short areas.

The FPC reported that some pipelines expect no curtailments of gas service this winter, while others anticipate large curtailments.

Action slated in 5 water pollution cases

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — At least four Missouri industries and possibly one municipality could be subjected to enforcement action next month for excessive water pollution.

State environmental quality officials declined to identify the five. But they said the action will result from their failure to meet the federal government's July 1 deadline for cleaning up waterways.

"We know the ones that will not meet the date and we're working with them now, but there are some in the state that are really not trying to do all they can do to meet the date," said James Odendahl, director of the state Clean Water Commission.

Robert Hentges said the commission staff "will probably initiate some kind of action at the next commission meeting in July. We have had three years for conferences, conciliation and persuasion."

Enforcement action could range from imposition of specific clean-up schedules to lawsuits seeking fines up to $10,000 for each day pollution standards are not met.

The 1972 federal water pollution control law set July 1 for industry to apply the "best practicable" methods of reducing waste discharges into waterways and for municipalities to use secondary facilities to filter and disinfect sewage. Only one Missouir firm has been subjected to fines for violations since 1972.

Hentges said the four industrial firms and the municipality are among 300 companies and more than 100 cities nationwide that the federal Environmental Protection Agency has targeted for possible penalty action over failure to mee the deadline. Should the state fail to act against the firms, the EPA could.

Of 59 major industrial water polluters in the state, Hentges said only 17 will not meet the deadline. But he said 13 of those are either actively building pollution control facilities or are experiencing other mitigating circumstances "and we're definitely not going to take any action against them."

Concerning municipalities, Odendahl said "a great number of people are not going to meet the deadline." But nearly all of those towns have had problems obtaining financing, primarily from the federal government, for treatment plant construction, he said.

The Clean Water Commission is expected to take action this month to assist those industries and communities it does not intend to act against.

N L Industries of St. Louis, which produces a dye pigment, has been the only Missouri firm subjected to monetary fines for violating pollution control standards so far, Hentgest said.

Under a settlement awaiting federal court approval, the firm has agreed to pay $125,000 in civil penalties for past violations and $1,000 a day beginning July 1 until it meets pollution control standards. It it fails to meet the standards by April 1, 1980, when its daily fines will total $1 million, it will begin paying $10,000 a day until the standards are met.

6 stewards in Mondale home cost $75,000

WASHINGTON (AP) — When Walter F. Mondale comes home after a hard day of being vice president, he has six Filipino stewards supplied by the Navy waiting to serve him.

An aide to the vice president says the Mondales "don't have any choice." The stewards "are simply assigned there by the Navy."

This military decision costs $75,000 a year, according to a Navy spokesman.

The six stewards work in the Admiral's House, the Victorian home that now serves as the official residence for the vice president.

Located on the grounds of the Naval Observatory on a hill overlooking sloping lawns and trees, the house is set well back from Massachusetts Avenue at the northern end of the fashionable Embassy Row.

It formerly was the residence for the chief of Naval operations.

The six stewards assigned to the vice president cook and serve meals, shop and keep the house clean, from the basement to the circular room in the turret.

The Mondale aide said the assistance of the Navy stewards was needed to run the mansion because it is considerably larger than the home from which the family moved.

"There's no way they could run the house," said the aide, noting that it has a basement kitchen similar to one found in a restaurant.

A woman who cleaned the family's old home once a week before Mondale became vice president still works for the family, visiting the new home once a week to do the laundry and ironing.

Before Mondale became vice president, he and his wife and their three children lived several blocks away in a modest single-family wood-frame house.

Malden doctor to be honored

MALDEN — Dr. Wayne Croom will be honored June 20 at the annual Malden Chamber of Commerce dinner to be held in the Community Center.

Dr. Croom, who has been associated with the Edmundson-Croom and Croom-Morehead Clinics in Malden for the past 23 years, has announced plans to leave Malden. He will become medical director at the East Arkansas Family Health Center in West Memphis.

Featured speaker at the annual dinner will be Thomas L. Holling, district director of the U.S. Small Business Administration.

Newly-elected Chamber officers will be introduced and reports made.

Tickets for the dinner are $5.00 per person and must be purchased by Friday from the Chamber of Commerce office. No tickets will be sold at the door. The dinner is scheduled for 7 p.m.

Testimony on influence buying

WASHINGTON (AP) — A former head of the Korean Central Intelligence Agency admits he helped set up a Washington social club that was part of a scheme by the South Korean government to buy influence from U.S. congressmen. Kim also told a House international relations subcommittee Wednesday that the South Korean spy agency put up money to provide payoffs to U.S. congressmen.

EPA to seek noise labels

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Environmental Protection Agency, citing the possible health effects of noise pollution, is planning to require manufacturers of certain products to carry noise warnings. Although the EPA shied away from listing specific products to come under the new regulation on Wednesday, there were indications that vacuum cleaners, air conditioners, shop tools, dishwashers and powered lawn mowers would be affected.

Drought may cost farmers millions

ATLANTA (AP) — A twomonth drought through much of the South has parched land, shriveled crops and dried up water supplies, threatening to cost farmers millions of dollars.

Some farmers stand to take a double blow when their feed crops fail. They will be unable to feed their livestock and will have to sell animals at a loss.

The southern drought comes while the West's worst dry period in the century continues almost unabated, with forest fire danger high and water rationing imposed in many areas.

Damage to Georgia's corn crop is estimated at $94 million, because of fireworm and budworm infestation as well as lack of moisture.

"We are dry," said Wayne County, Ga., farm agent Bobby Deal. "We expect to lose 65 per cent of our corn crop."

But most of Georgia's crops haven't been planted and Agriculture Commissioner Tommy Irvin said the loss is impossible to estimate. The value of last year's soybean crop was put at nearly $144 million.

Several Georgia counties have begun issuing weekend warnings to residents to curtail washing their cars, watering gardens and filling swimming pools.

In Houston County, Ala., agriculture officials said about twothirds of the 60,000 acres of corn has been ruined.

Soybean crops in Alabama, Georgia and Virginia were all below normal.

Tobacco markets are expected to open next month, but this year's loss in Georgia alone is expected to be more than $8.5 million. In Virginia and Tennessee, tobacco is in good condition, but both areas need more rain to maintain a healthy crop.

Cotton losses in Georgia were estimated at $8 million, but other states reported good crop conditions, despite a shortage of moisture.

Pastures in Alabama, Mississippi and Tennessee are parched and dry and cattlemen are being forced to send cattle to market early.

In Alabama, a spokesman for the cattlemen's association said cattlemen stand to lose $100 million because calves are selling for about $35 per head less because they are going to market 75 to 100 pounds thinner than normal.

Power unit dedicated at New Madrid plant

NEW MADRID — The second unit of the New Madrid Power Plant was dedicated Wednesday during a program at the Associated Electric Cooperative Inc. site located in St. Jude Industrial Park, about five miles south of New Madrid.

The New Madrid electric generating station consists of two 600-megawatt units. The plant's 1,200 megawatt generating capacity makes it the largest electric generating station operated by any electric cooperative in the United States.

Constructed at a cost of $171,500,000, unit two is part of a $208,100,000 total project including over 300 miles of high voltage transmission line and sub-stations.

The first unit, which is owned by the City of New Madrid, was completed in July, 1972 and is leased and operated by AECI, whose main offices are in Springfield. Construction on the second unit began in January, 1974 and commercial operation began this month.

Power generated by the New Madrid plant and Associated's Thomas Hill plant near Moberly provides electrical energy for 350,000 to 400,000 users.

Gerald F. Diddle, general manager of AECI, said "This plant means much to the regional area and plays a major role in keeping the cost of electrical power down in rural Missouri". He said 15 per cent of the power produced by the New Madrid plant is dedicated to reserve. This reserve, Diddle explained, is to assist other rural electrical distribution systems when they experience an emergency in their systems. He added that the reserves save money for everybody in meeting the energy needs in both rural Missouri and metropolitan areas.

J. K. Smith, governor, National Rural Utilities Cooperative Finance Corporation in Washington, D.C. -- a bank formed in 1971 by 860 cooperatives to meet the needs of financing rural electrification – was guest speaker.

In 1973, CFC committed a $140 million loan to Associated. Later when the Rural Electrification Administration was able to guarantee loans, CFC and Associated agreed to release Associated from the committment and allow the cooperative to get federal financing.

REA backed the project by guaranteeing loans totaling $142.4 million and was involved in an additional package of direct loans by REA in the Agriculture Department totaling $74.2 million, with $25 million invested by National Rural Utilities Cooperative Finance Corp.

Smith, who said electrical rates reflect the cost of the capital, pointed out that the improved money costs to Associated in turn improved the cost of a kilowatt.

David A. Hamil, administrator of the REA, Washington, D.C., stated in his dedication address that today 99 per cent of the farms have electrification. "Nothing has come along that has made the rural area more productive than getting electrical service", Hamil declared.

"Speaking for 24 million people in the rural United States, I take a deep honor and great pleasure in dedicating unit two to the benefit of all of you people here, your associates and to all the rest of the rural Americans", Hamil concluded.

Blount Brothers Corp. of Montgomery, Ala. was the general construction contractors for the project, which was designed and engineered by Burns and McDonnell Consulting Engineers of Kansas City.

M. W. Kellogg Company of New York built the 800-foot stack that meets environmental requirements. The $3 million stack is now utilized by both units, replacing the 600-foot stack that was built for unit one.

Bailey Meter Company, Wickliffe, Ohio provided the control systems, monitoring 1,330 points in the control room.

The purchase by AECI of two major pieces of machinery for unit two, jointly with those of unit one, the turbine generator from Brown Boveri Corp., Mannehein, Germany and the steam boiler from Babcock and Wilcox Corp., Barberton, Ohio, resulted in an $8 million savings alone for the generator.

The coal-fired steam generating power station is strategically located on a site adjacent to the Mississippi River. The total acreage includes 250 acres on the land side of the levee and about 272 acres on the river side of the levee.

Year-round navigation of the river provides dependable barge service for the approximately 3.6 million tons of coal used annually. The coal burn rate is 285 tons per hour for each unit.

The plant's coal supply, mined in southern Illinois by the Peabody Coal Co. had been shipped by rail to East St. Louis, then to New Madrid by barge. Since June, 1976, the plant's coal supply is delivered via the Kaskaskia River channel, which has resulted in shorter rail and barge routes and about $1 savings per ton.

The plant stockpiles 400,000 tons of coal or a 40-50 day supply representing a $6 million investment and spare parts on hand represent another $2.8 million.

Members of AECI board of directors present for the dedication were Rudie Slaughter, president, of Senath; O. B. Clark, vice president of Barnett; R. D. Pennewell, secretary- treasurer of Palmyra; M. W. Boudreaux of Palmyra; Dean Sanger of Venita, Okla.; Curtis L. Funston of Cameron; John K. Davis of Marshfield; Robert Stagner of Poplar Bluff; Harold F. Gas supply doubtful

WASHINGTON (AP) — Even with normal weather, next winter's natural gas shortage may be as bad as last winter's, or worse, the Federal Power Commission is warning.

How much gas is available depends on a variety of factors, including the weather, the availability of more natural gas under emergency sales regulations and the ability of customers to switch to other fuels, the FPC said Wednesday.

The amount of gas in storage when the cold weather begins also will help determine the winter's supply, a report by the agency said.

The American Gas Association reported last week that the nation's natural gas storage capacity has increased slightly and stored gas supplies should be normal or larger than normal by October, when the heating season begins.

But there is no room for overconfidence.

Last winter, during a record cold spell, interstate pipelines were able to deliver only 5.715 trillion cubic feet of the 7.24 trillion cubic feet needed to meet customers' "firm requirements."

That left deliveries 21 per cent short of demand, and thousands of factories, businesses and schools were forced to close temporarily as a result.

This winter, the FPC said, pipeline companies expect the "firm requirements" to be a little lower, 7.2 trillion cubic feet.

But deliverable supplies have dropped even more, to 5.54 trillion cubic feet, leaving an anticipated gap of 23 per cent.

Severe weather like last winter's would increase demand and worsen the shortage, but also would bring emergency regulations into play that might allow partial relief by shifting some gas supplies around. That would make available to the interstate pipelines some intrastate supplies normally outside their reach.

The new FPC report is predicting a continuation of the trend that has been evident since about 1971, when the nation's natural gas production and sales to interstate pipelines began a long, steady

TOO MUCH LICENSE TAKEN

The propensity of Americans for making constitutional mountains out of legalistic molehills has seldom been better illustrated than by the case of the New Hampshire license plate dissenter.

A few years ago, New Hampshire decided to emblazon its license plates with the motto, "Live Free or Die." To one citizen of said state, George Maynard, the slogan was ideologically offensive. In his opinion, life was more precious than freedom — a belief to which he was and is certainly entitled.

Maynard, however, proceeded to tape over the slogan in violation of state law forbidding the defacement of license plates. This act of disobedience was not to be tolerated. In contradiction of its own motto, New Hampshire did not offer the dissenter the option of living according to his beliefs or departing this life, but rather began legal action against him.

To make a long story short, the case eventually wended its way up to the Supreme Court of the United States, which in its august majesty has just decreed that New Hampshire's attempt to compel Maynard to display the motto was a violation of his First Amendment right of free speech and amounted to a form of thought control.

That it may well have been. But it is also an awful lot of nonsense,and the real clowns in this comedy are the New Hampshire authorities who made a martyr out of Maynard in the first place.

Now if the man had defaced his plates so as to alter or obscure the numbers or had changed the expiration date or something like that, it would have been a different matter. It would also have been resolvable at some judicial level below that of the highest court in the land, without the employment of batteries of constitutional lawyers and the expenditure of thousands of dollars.

But so what if someone tapes over a portion of a license plate that is not essential for identification purposes? Who should care?

The legislator who dreamed up New Hampshire's "Live Free or Die" motto apparently thought it was an important statement or affirmation of some kind. We believe that an older motto still says everything that needs to be said: "Live and let live."

The U.S. is not the only Western country with a social security problem. The systems in Italy and France are struggling to avoid bankruptcy, and the situation isextremely critical in West Germany, where the bill is coming due for benefits that have been raised 50 per cent since 1970. Britain continues to have a surplus, but the pensions are so small that one-quarter of the recipients have to ask for additional benefits in order to survive.

President Carter has been criticized by some for presiding at a cabinet meeting while wearing a sport shirt unbuttoned at the collar, and no coat; by many of the same for wearing a sweater while making his "fireside chat" last Thursday evening near his fireplace.

It was refreshing to those of us who believe tht for too long we've had too many stuffed shirts in stiff collars conducting the business of our nation.

When the 60-county health committee meets this month to discuss ways and means of increasing usage of present health services, many Monroe Countians hope that it will discuss how the Monroe County Health Unit can be made more accessible to its users, especially to older or physically disadvantaged persons. It is now on the third floor of the courthouse and many cannot walk to it up the long flights of stairs. It is true that health office people will come to the first floor, but it is believed that if it was on a ground floor, more would take advantage of the services.

WHERE DO THEY GET THEIR FIGURES

Many people in the rural and small town areas of the nation would like to know where the U.S. Labor Department gets its figures on the costs of living. They are not convinced that they come from our areas, but more likely are from such high prices living places as Washington, D.C., New York, Detroit and others.

The Labor Department says that a family of four needs $10,041 income per year for "austere" living, and $16,236 for a moderate standard of living.

There are hundreds of families, possibly more, in Monroe County and Northeast Missouri who do and can live well on that sum, maybe have something left over.

Those "cost-ov-living" figures ought to be made by areas, not for the nation as a whole.

You Should Know That...

The Federal Election Commission, set up by Congress to prevent campaign abuses, is auditing neither the Carter nor Ford campaigns. Instead, the Washington Post reported last week, it is spending its time going over the books of the defeated candidates for the Republican and Democratic nominations. The commission operates on a $5 million-a-year budget, has more than 160 staffers, including two dozen auditors. Asked why it is concentrating on defunct campaigns instead of the current ones, Commissioner Neil Stabler said it was because the financial records of the old campaigns are now complete, whereas those of Ford and Carter are not.

Why is natural gas in such short supply?

Like crude oil, natural gas has been subject to government price controls, only for a much longer time. In 1954, the Supreme Court ruled that the Federal Power Commission (FPC) could regulate natural gas at the wellhead so long as the gas was sold across state lines. For more than two decades, then, the price has been kept artificially low, making natural gas much in demand and at the same time reducing incentives on the part of producers to search for new supplies. The consequences were inevitable and a natural gas crisis, so to speak, was born in 1968, the first year that consumption exceeded the discovery of new reserves.

Industry people argue that freeing new gas from wellhead controls would let market forces determine the price, give producers the incentive to go after new reserves and, as the price rises, encourage conservation of this important fuel.

Preaching From The Audience

It certainly gripes us to have congressmen sitting around debating how much Social Security taxes the rest of us must pay when congressmen don't pay any at all. They don't pay Social Security because, at the taxpayers' expense, they have provided themselves with a better retirement plan. Obviously, this wouldn't be hard. Since the majority of lawmakers admit the plan is so lousy, why don't they do something about it? If a private company ran its retirement plan the way Congress runs ours, the company owners would have been put in jail. And, incidentally, if congressmen can escape paying Social Security taxes because they have a better plan, then why can't all the others who have a better plan do so, too?

The U.S. Holds Fast

We take NATO for granted at our peril. It must remain the cornerstone of our defense against the threat of Communist aggression from the East. Any idea of a "Euro-army" based on the Common Market is, also, a laughable prospect for the foreseeable future. The French in their spleen and their pride, have seen to that. That NATO endures after 30 years, that despite its military shortcomings it is still a credible deterrent is more than anything else a massive tribute to the United States of America. It has lasted so long, this committment in Europe by America to the West's defense, that we may be tempted to look on it as part of the natural order of things. We could not be more wrong. It almost amounts to a sustained act of defiance against historical gravity. The natural thing by now would have been for the Americans to have retreated into isolationism as they did between the two World Wars. The humiliation of Vietnam, coupled with the neutralism and defense cuts among so many of their allies, might so easily have provoked just such a withdrawal to "fortress America" but they've stuck to it with a determination that should shame us all.

XXX

Tying Up Loose Ends

The American commitment not to block Vietnam's admission to the United Nations is a uniquely important step in tidying up the foreign entanglements of the past two decades or more.

Barely two years after the collapse of the South Vietnamese regime it had propped up for so long at such great cost, the United States now seems well on the way to full diplomatic relations with a united Vietnam. It took 16 years to reach the same level of cordiality with Cuba.

The Carter Administration deserves credit for its decision to recognize certain realities instead of resisting them, and for writing off the mistakes of the past without an extended mourning period. And it's good that Americans can probably count on the same kind of pragmatism on a much older chink in the nation's foreign policy armor: the Panama Canal.

A new canal treaty is as inevitable as the resumption of diplomatic ties with Hanoi and Havana. Still, the talks with Panama are complicated by a factor tht doesn't enter into the Vietnam and Cuba equations. A treaty relinquishing perpetual U.S. sovereignty over the Canal Zone won't be worth the paper it's written on util it's ratified in the Senate by a two-thirds majority. But the Executive Branch doesn't need congressional approval to recognize a foreign government, and it should proceed briskly to recognize the ones that govern in Cuba and Vietnam.

A DAY WITHOUT SUNSHINE

WASHINGTON— Pity the poor Florida orange growers. They are caught in a quandary since Anita Bryant's victory against homosexual rights in Dade County. The orange growers pay Miss Bryant $100,000 a year to push Florida orange juice, a job that she has done magnificently.

Anita Bryant meant orange juice and orange juice meant Anita Bryant. It is this instant celebrity identification that sponsors dream of. When you speak of Bob Hope, you're supposed to think of Texaco; mention Joe Namath and people are supposed to have a vision of pantyhose. Danny Thomas goes together with Maxwell House coffee; and, recently, when you see a picture of former Sen. Sam Ervin, it is hoped your first thought is of an American Express credit card.

The problem in Florida is that when people now see Anita Bryant on television, the first thing that comes to mind is "gay," not as in breakfast but as in "homosexual."

The Florida orange juice people are not interested in selling homosexuals. That's not their business. A majority, I would guess, are sympathetic wtith Miss Bryant's stand on the issue, but the trouble with fighting homosexuals is that it doesn't sell orange juice.

First of all, no one knows how many homosexuals there are in this country because, despite all the publicity, many of them have still not come out of the closet.

Secondly, there are no figures on how many of them drink orange juice. But there are presumably enough of them to hurt the sale of Florida oranges. A sudden switch to California orange juice by gay people in this country could cost the Florida orange grove owners millions of dollars.

At the same time, the Florida orange juice industry is aware that if Anita Bryant is fired there could be a backlash from the heterosexuals in this country who would boycott Florida oranges in protest.

Market surveys indicate that heterosexuals are still the largest consumers of orange juice and drink it not only for its taste but also for its vitamins and the stamina it provides them. The Florida orange industry can't afford to lose the heterosexual orange juice drinkers if they expect to stay in business.

There is a solution to the problem, which I hesitate to suggest, since I don't want to get involved in the controversy. But I will because I believe the Florida orange growers need all the help they can get.

What the Florida orange industry could do is break down its TV budget. Half of it would go to Miss Bryant to continue pushing Florida orange juice to the "straight" people, and half would go to a gay spokesperson who would appeal to the homosexual drinkers. It would mean cutting Miss Bryant's fee to $50,000 a year, so the gay person would get paid the same as she does. But at the same time, Miss Bryant would only be required to make half the number of TV commercials.

It seems to me that this would satisfy everyone. The heterosexuals would be pleased to see that Miss Bryant was still selling orange juice, and the gays would be delighted to have finally broken through on big-time television. Florida orange juice consumption would have to go up because the TV commercials would appeal to everyone, regardless of race, religion or sexual preference.

Of course, the advertising agency for the Florida orange growers would have to find a gay spokesperson who could sing as well as Miss Bryant. But that shouldn't be a problem. Many of our finest performers come from the gay community and would be happy to supplement their income by doing orange juice commercials.

I would do it myself, but unfortunately I can't carry a tune.

IRANIAN JUSTICE MIGHT BE JUST WHAT THE U.S. NEEDS

By JACK ANDERSON and Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — Not long ago, the Shah of Iran spoke to Chief Justice Warren Burger about modernizing the judicial processes in his country. Apologetically, the Shah explained that Iran's system of justice was primitive. In the villages, he said, disputes were resolved by councils of elders. There were no courts, no lawyers, no judicial review.

The Chief Justice confided afterward that he would like to send a legal team to Iran to investigate village justice. The American experts, he suggested, might learn something.

Burger has become increasingly dismayed with the complex legal system in the United States. The lawyers are entangling the populace in litigation, bogfing down the courts and substituting legal manipulation for justice.

"The harsh truth," he warned the American Bar Association last month, "is that ... we may well be on our way to a society overrun by hordes of lawyers, hungry as locusts, and brigades of judges in numbers neiver before contemplated."

Across the land, lawyer slurk behind the bushes waiting to pounce upon the passers-by, drag them into court and drain them of their assets. Most lawsuits benefit only the lawyers, who collect fat fees and leave both parties worse off.

Attorneys also dominate the government. The founding fathers intended that Congress, for example, should be representative of the people. But the lawyers have taken it over; they hold more than 300 of the 535 seats.

Attorneys also populate the various federal agencies, boards, commissions, committees and councils. Both in and out of government, Washington has more lawyers per capita than any city in the world. The lawyers in government produce complex legislation and regulations, which create business for the lawyers out of government.

Today, the confused citizen needs an attorney to make out a tax return, sell a home, settle an estate and protect him from the proliferating pitfalls that the government lawyers produce. Here are our observations:

-- The nation is overrun with lawyers who, lured by the scent of the green, congregate where the big money is. They thrive, for example, on corporate law. Indeed, many a corporate president began as the general counsel. Yet the nation's 29 million poor are suffering from a lawyer shortage. An estimated 85 per cent of their legal needs are still unmet.

-- All too often, the legal decision goes to the client with the most money. He can outmaneuver and outlast his poorer opponent in the courts. It is not uncommon, corporate attorneys tell us, for complex cases to drag on for more than a decade. The client who has to count his money may not survive the legal skirmishing. The poor often cannot afford to seek redress of grievances for even the most basic injustices.

-- Most lawyers price themselves out of the average American's range. Their hourly rates start around $35, quickly reach $100 and continue on up into the stratosphere. Once the eminent Washington attorney, Clark Clifford, made a rare appearance on Capitol Hill for Charles Revson, the head of Revlon cosmetics. Clifford coached hhis client carefully, then sat silently at his side while Revson answered congressmen's questions. For this appearance, Clifford sent Revson a bill of $25,000.

-- The legal processes have become encumbered with procedural rigmarole -- unnecessary routines that are designed more to enrich the lawyers than to serve the public. It costs a small fortune, for example, to clear the title for a home purchase. And the probate processes have become so encrusted that the attortneys often wind up with a greater share of an inheritance than the heirs.

--Attorneys are supposed to be society's peacemakers and problem solvers. Too many devote themselves to the opposite; they are troublemakers who create problems. They operate on the theory, apparently, that the more trouble they can stir up, the more law business there will be. The wise judge learned Hand once remarked: "I must say that as a litigant I should dread a lawsuit beyond almost anything else short of sickness and death."

-- Most lawyers, in the opinion of the judges who watch them in action, are incompetent. Chief Justice Burger has noted: "Many judges in general jurisdiction trial courts have stated to me that fewer than 25 per cent of the lawyers appearing before them are genuinely qualified."

-- Some 28,000 young graduates will pour out of the nation's law schools this year. This is nerly double the number who graduated 10 years ago. With few exceptions, they are licensed, according to Burger, "without the slightest inquiry into their capacity to perform the practical functions of a counselor or an advocate." They seek experience on the staffs of public defenders and prosecutors. The lawyers who represent the poor and the public, therefore, are often still in the process of learning how to try cases.

-- Lawyers profess that they regulate and discipline themselves. The truth is, however, that the disciplinary machinery is more often used to protect them from public embarrassment. The late Supreme Court Justice Tom Clark reported after an investigation in 1970 that professional misconduct went virtually unregulated in most of the 50 states.

Coal Still King:
Crises on Coal and Rail Fronts will rocket all prices, brake economy

WASHINGTON — American Presidents have been told to go to hell -- sometimes Shakespeareanly, sometimes scatologically -- when they attempted to stonewall coal and railroad strikes. Mostly they went to the Supreme Court or to Congress. That's happened in war and peace.

And the public, hypnotized by Tom "Terrific" Seavers through the years, suddenly wondered why the commuter trains weren't running or their communities were threatened with brownouts.

So I'll Paul Revere for you this time. Heavy odds are now that coal and rail crises are speeding in on us. Probably national strikes. And therefore the cost of cooking, eating, heating and just simple living will rocket up by year's end.

This past week's national coaldiggers' union election means that the "new" miner, with a quickly lowering average age of 37 years, will soon be earning some $650 to $700 a week in straight time wages and fringes.

That's why young men and women, of an average age of 27 years and under, are flocking into the coalfields at a fantastic rate, considering the grimy fact that most of them know they will work deep in the pits.

Within a few hours of his election victory last Wednesday, United Mine Workers' president, 54-year-old Arnold Miller, dubbed the coal mine industry "the enemy." And he promised his 167,000 active coaldiggers the best new contract ever. Since the average miner already costs the pit operators over $100 daily, and the pact about to be negotiated will follow other recent industrial collective bargaining patterns of 33 to 40 per cent increases over three years, there could well be coaldiggers taking more than $700 weekly soon enough.

In rank-and-file miners' milieus there's intense talk about getting special hazard pay for underground work; more time off, with pay in the United Auto Workers' tgradition; an increase in the pension and welfare royalty payments per ton, contributed by the operators, which in many areas are the big steel companies; and the united demand for the right to strike legally, locally to settle grievances.

No petty cash all this. In the year ending June 30, 1976, the coal companies contributed $589.2 million to the pension and welfare funds.

And the odds that the mine owners will sign such contracts with President Miller are about as good as the Atlanta Braves' chances for the pennant. So, forgive the analogy, more strikes are expected in the coalfields than in the nation's ball parks this season.

But in the end -- meaning next winter -- the price of coal will up. This will pressure prices in steel, therefore in auto and trucks, therefore in deliveries of all kinds and therefore in the cost of living and in the cost of running a thousand cities. Just watch.

Arnold Miller will have to deliver to his new breed rank-and-filers or lose control, despite hsi election victory. And they are a new breed.

"The new young people coming in are typical of their generation, well-educated, aggressive, questioning and highly vocal," says one coal industry insider. "Since this work force will . . . lack the tempering impact of the middle-age group, dealing with them will be exceedingly difficult."

Though the White House coal price-watchers expect 50,000 to 60,000 coaldiggers to wildcat in week-long, illegal strikes this summer, the actual climax will clamp onto the nation in December. This is just about the time the rail unions (with 456,000 members) will confront some 150 Class I lines in new contract negotiations. There may be some illegality about selective strikes which could paralyze the rails then but that's hardly been a brake on such tactics.

The railroads have just notified some unions that this time the companies don't plan to sit by and be governed by wage and work roles developed when the Union Pacific was running wooden cars through war-torn Indian territory. Further, the railroads now want a change in work rules which would enable them to get skilled workers to cross craft lines to handle any regular jobs inside the rail "shops." That's like demanding that Sen. Barry Goldwater replace George McGovern as president of the Americans for Democratic Action.

And leaning against the rails will be a new militant labor voice, 52-year-old Bill Winpisinger who becomes president of the million-member International Assn. of Machinists (AFL-CIO) on July 1. Same time Arnold Miller gets his own mine union's official returns.

There will be lots more about "Winpi" in coming months. Sufficient here to report he'll not hesitate to shut down the nation's rail lines to win wage and fringe increases for his followers.

So that's how it always begins. And these leagues are bigger than Tom Seaver's.

Today's news in brief

Vance slated to visit China

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance is going to China as the Carter administration continues its efforts to normalize relations with the government in Peking.

State Department spokesman Hodding Carter Wednesday refused to say whether Vance, who will be in Peking Aug. 22-26, will reach an agreement on normalizing relations during his trip.

Establishment of full diplomatic relations has been an objective of the past three administrations, but none has been able to come up with a politically acceptable way of dealing with Taiwan.

The United States and China seem no closer to cesolving the dispute over Taiwan than they were when their new relationship began with the visit of former President Richard Nixon to China in 1972.

Carter said six weeks ago he would move quickly to establish relations with Peking if China promises not to "punish or attack Taiwan."

Chinese officials have since rejected that condition as meddling in China's internal affairs.

Retaliatory slayings claimed

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — Ugandan refugees are bringing more reports of killing by President Idi Amin's security forces in retaliation for a plot on his life. Some of the refugees say the plot was foiled before a shot was fired.

A spokesman for the provincial commissioner at Kakamega, near the Ugandan border, reported 13 officers and civilians who crossed the frontier "said assassins on their way to kill Amin were intercepted near Entebbe without a shot being fired.

"Since then, they said, a number of military people have been killed on suspicion of being involved in the plot. ... They said that they fled from the Entebbe area because they feared their lives were in danger."

Automakers to drop Tris use

DETROIT (AP) — Chances are that upholstery in your American-made car is treated with the same fire-retardant chemical that the government banned from children's sleepwear — Tris. But the nation's automakers don't believe motorists are endangered by the upholstery containing the chemical which has been linked to some forms of cancer. As a precaution, however, they're dropping its use and hope to eliminate it entirely by next year.

Colson describes prison life

WINCHESTER, Mass. (AP) — The prisons where two former top Nixon aides began serving time this week aren't exactly country clubs, says a former top Nixon aide who did prison time. Charles Colson, who served as special counsel for Nixon, said, "living in constant noise and in overwhelming depression is like living in a terminal ward." Colson spoke to a group of high school students in this Boston suburb only hours after John Mitchell entered prison at Maxwell Air Force Base in Alabama on Wednesday, the first former U.S. attorney general to go to prison. Colson was also jailed there. Former White House chief of staff H.R. Haldeman surrendered on Tuesday at the federal prison at Lompoc, Calif.

Saccharin ban debate goes on

WASHINGTON (AP) — The head of the Food and Drug Administration is convinced saccharin poses a cancer risk to humans and should be taken off the market. But many members of Congress are equally convinced the government should wait awhile before acting. FDA Commissioner Donald Kennedy said Wednesday in a Portland, Ore., speech that a new Canadian study shows a clear link between saccharin use and the risk of cancer in men.

Senate ponders secret bomb

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate is trying to decide whether to approve funding for production of a super-secret, lethal neutron bomb designed to zero in on population centers but not buildings. The Appropriations Committee included money for the new nuclear warhead in a $1.4 billion public works and energy research appropriation bill that was approved Wednesday and sent to the full Senate.

OAS adopts U.S. resolution

ST. GEORGE'S, Grenada (AP) — The Organization of American States adopted a U.S. resolution calling on its members to put a stop to all violations of human rights on their territories. The OAS "reaffirmed its commitment to the priority of human rights and to that extent we in this hemisphere lead the world," U.S. Ambassador Gale McGee said following approval of the resolution at the final session of the organization's annual assembly. The resolution was approved by 14 of the 25 nations, one more than the majority required for adoption.

Photos may provide lead

LOCUST GROVE, Okla. (AP) — Police say they have gotten "a substantial lead which will be pursued" from photographs, showing three women at a wedding, found near the bodies of three Girl Scouts slain at a summer camp.

"We want to know how the pictures taken at a wedding far away from Locust Grove came to where we found them, how this wierdo, psychotic, if it was, had these pictures out there," a state crime bureau spokesman said.

The women in the pictures were identified Wednesday after television stations and newspapers throughout the state published the photos, which were released by the crime bureau Tuesday.

Crime bureau Director Jeff Laird emphasized that the three women "are totally innocent" of any complicity in the slayings.

He said the women "don't know a darned thing" about how the photos came to be at the camp.

The three were friends of a couple married in 1968 but did not know each other, officials said.

The three scouts, aged 8, 9 and 10, were killed on June 13 during the first night of a camping trip at Camp Scott near here. Two were beaten to death and one was strangled; their bodies were found several hundred yards from the tent they had shared. All three had been sexually molested.

Meanwhile, officials have begun taking calls from men volunteering to help search the camp area Friday for clues.

Women were banned from the search because, officials said, no portable toilets would be available for them.

Several hundred men will be accepted for the search and given specific directions about what to look for, said Dist. Atty. Sid Wise.

He said reporters could accompany the searchers, but only if they agree to withhold the subject of the search from publication until sometime Friday afternoon.

The Daily Oklahoman identified two of the women in the wedding photographs as Peggy Walker and Ginger Cypret, both of Mangum. The third woman asked that her name not be released.

John Donley, a Weatherford lawyer speaking for the undentified third woman, said the women were "totally shocked" that their pictures had been found at the scout camp. He said the three had been identified by the groom in the 1968 wedding.

"She's worried. It bothers her," Donley said of his client. He said the woman, a secretary, "wasn't even aware her picture was taken at the wedding."

"She's shook up. She was totally shocked when she saw the pictures in the newspaper," he said.

MIDTOWNER VILLAGE

Some winners and losers from legislative session

By DAVID RAMSEUR
Missouri Press News

JEFFERSON CITY — Three-foot-tall mounds of unpassed bills, obsolete reports and dated memoranda were not thrown toward the high ceilings of the House and Senate chambers this year as they normally are on the last night of the session.

Missouri legislators solemnly boxed up their four-month collection of session business and quietly returned to their offices rather than throwing the mess into the air at the stroke of midnight June 15.

The failure to reach a compromise on the type and location of a new state prison clouded the end of the legislative session, but many new laws that affect Missourians were put on the books.

APPROVED

SCHOOL AID FORMULA — This revision of the present 10-year-old formula ends the reliance on property assessments as a key factor in determining aid and instead averages personal income in school districts. Rural districts will probably receive more money under the formula although no district will receive less than the previous year.

DEATH PENALTY — The state's law is modeled after those upheld by the U. S. Supreme Court which outlawed Missouri's old death penalty law. The new law provides for a dual system of trials and an automatic review of each death sentence.

CRIMINAL CODE — The massive revision of the 142-year-old code which still prohibits drunken stagecoach driving eliminates some discrepancies in crimes and punishments. The revision includes reduced punishments for prostitution and homosexual relations and new sanctions against child pornography.

ELECTION CODE — This bill establishes six statewide election days but additional elections will be allowed for such votes as the issuance of bonds after emergencies. The bill becomes effective Jan. 1, 1978, when signed by the governor.

SPEED LIMITS — The 55 mil-per-hour speed limit was extended to Missouri highways for two years. Another bill that allows second class counties to set speed limits on their county roads also was passed.

FINANCE POOLING — A constitutional amendment which must receive statewide voter approval before becoming law, the bill allows "political subdivisions" to jointly finance and operate power plants which presently are prohibited. Such plants would be regulated by the Public Service Commission which would have to approve all joint ventures and regulate the electricity rates charged.

PAY RAISES — Legislators voted themselves pay hikes and increases in the per diem they are allowed during sessions. The pay raises are from $8,400 to $15,000 a year and per diem was increased from $25 to $35 per day.

Pay raises also were approved for most heads of state agencies. Most directors' salaries will increase from $30,000 to $40,000 per year and Public Service Commissioners will receive an $8,000 annual increase to $36,000.

PUBLIC DRUNKENNESS — Intended to make for easier rehabilitation of alcoholics, the bill allows police officers to take intoxicated persons home, to a rehabilitation center or to jail for 12 hours but the person cannot be arrested.

RAPE TESTIMONY — The bill prohibits testimony regarding a rape victim's sexual history during a criminal trial.

HAZARDOUS WASTES — A Hazardous Waste Commission within the Missouri Department of Natural Resources would regulate transportation and disposal of chemically dangerous waste products.

INSURANCE "RED-LINING" — Insurance companies would be prohibited from refusing to sell insurance in high risk areas.

SWEEPSTAKES — Another constitutional amendment, if approved by voters, it would allow Missourians to participate in game sweepstakes that do not require entry fees, such as the Reader's Digest sweepstakes.

LICENSE PLATES — Personalized license plates which will bear the state motto, "Show-Me State," and cost $12 more than regular plates, will be available. Legislators, the handicapped and disabled veterans could obtain plates with special symbols under the bill.

SPEEDY TRIALS — A watered-down version of this bill will require criminal trials to be held within 120 days of arrest and arraignments within 10 days. Delays could be granted for a variety of reasons if allowed by the presiding judge.

PARENT LOCATOR — This bill allows welfare agencies to seek fathers of welfare children who do not support their children.

PESTICIDE CONTROL — Revises provisions for the certification and licensing of persons applying pesticides, creating classification for non-commercial and public applicators of pesticides.

GRAIN WAREHOUSES — This law completely revises the statutes regulating and governing grain warehouses in Missouri.

CORPORATE FARMING — This bill exempts any bank or trust company acting as an administrator or executor of a trust from corporate farming restrictions.

FAILED

Several bills of statewide interest were not passed by the General Assembly. These include:

CONFLICT OF INTEREST — The law would have required elected judges and other officials to disqualify themselves on matters in which they or their immediate families might have an interest.

Nancy Walker to return to 'Rhoda' series

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actress Nancy Walker, whose two situation comedies on ABC flopped this season, returns next season as the mother of CBS' "Rhoda".

Miss Walker played the role of Rhoda Morgenstern's mother, Ida, in the CBS show for two seasons before leaving it last spring to work for ABC.

Billy Carter wins 1st elective post

PLAINS, Ga. (AP) — Billy Carter, whose older brother has demonstrated a certain political knack, has finally been elected to office.

But there was little speculation about the birth of a political dynasty as the two-time loser for mayor of Plains presided over a meeting of the newly formed Plains Merchants Association on Tuesday night.

"This is the first time I've been elected to any damn thing," Carter remarked at the meeting, called to discuss the economic future of this southwest Georgia town.

No one should doze when buying bedding

Associated Press Writer

The average American spends up to a third of his life asleep, but he may know less about the mattress he's lying on than he does about products that occupy only a fraction of his time.

The National Association of Bedding Manufacturers offers a guide to some of the basics, but a spokesman for the group admits that the "consumer has to rely on the knowledge of the retail salesman."

Mattress construction is a complicated process, the spokesman said. All you get to see of the product is the cover.

"Primarily you buy on feel," said the bedding industry spokesman. "The big thing today is a firm mattress. The idea is to get the firmest support possible without it feeling like a board."

You have to take the word of the salesman and the guarantee of the manufacturer that the mattress will feel the same a year from now as it does today.

A little bit of knowledge will go a long way, however, in helping you to ask the right questions. (The salesman should know the answers about construction and quality; if he doesn't you might want to switch salesmen or stores.)

Mattresses and boxsprings generally range in size from the twin — 38 inches wide by 75 inches long — to the king — 76 inches wide and 80 inches long.

Most experts, including the manufacturers, say you should buy a new boxspring whenever you choose a new mattress. If the mattress is worn out, the spring probably is due for replacement as well, they claim.

There are two basic types of mattresses: innerspring and foam. The foam mattresses are less expensive; they generally do not last as long, however.

The foam mattress consists of a core of cushiony urethane foam — either the standard type or a new, high-resiliency variety for increased support — and a synthetic cover. Combinations of foam may be laminated together to produce varying density.

The innerspring mattress is more complicated. It consists of springs, a layer of insulation — not the kind you use to save energy in your home, cushioning and a cover.

The standard double mattress (53 by 75 inches) has a minimum of about 250 coils. Some varieties may have up to 1,000 coils, but the wire used for the coils is likely to be lighter in weight. The bedding manufacturers' spokesman said the optimum construction generally is considered to include 312 coils of 13½ gauge wire. Ask the salesman or check manufacturers' literature to find out the number of coils and the strength of the wire before you buy.

The springs are covered with an insulator, either a pad of some kind or netting or a wire arrangement, designed to prevent the springs from sticking into your back and to keep the cushioning material from sinking into the center of the coils. Some manufacturers use extra insulation to increase the firmness of the mattress; others rely on a heavier gauge wire.

The final component is the cover, also known as the ticking. The manufacturers group says all tickings today are made of synthetics — partly to meet federal flammability standards for resistance to ignition by a lighted cigarette and partly for cost reasons.

Malden hires new policeman

MALDEN – Robert Thompson became Malden's newest policeman Monday night when he was hired by a unanimous vote of the City Council.

Thompson, 27, was hired under the federally- funded Public Service Employment (PSE) program. The city will be reimbursed for his government-established monthly salary of $550. Thompson, who formerly lived in Malden and attended school here, was spearated from active Army duty in May. He has undergone nine weeks of police training at Ft. Ord, Calif. in addition to other instruction.

The new policeman, who is married, was hired on a 90- day probationary, or trial, basis.

In another police- related matter, councilmen voted to pay all auxiliary policemen for hours worked in excess of 15 per month. Councilman Leroy Evans was absent.

In other business:

The Council decided to have the city attorney write the State Highway Department headquarters at Sikeston to inform it that Malden does not wish to accept the department's offer of the old Highway 25 property between J Highway and the north end of the new bypass. Otherwise, Malden would be responsible for maintaining that part of the highway.

Sims' Carpet Service's bid of $252.75 for carpet and linoleum (installed) at Fire Station No. 1 was accepted by the Council. The next lowest bid was from Malden furniture Company ($309.50); Wilcoxson and Sons Furniture of Malden bid $363. All bids included installation.

The Council convened in a four- minute closed session at the end of its regular meeting to discuss personnel matters.

Camera club organized in Sikeston

Sixteen persons attended the first meeting Wednesday night of a newly organized camera club in Sikeston.

The program, held at Security Federal Savings and Loan, started with a presentation of slides from various members. Each member explained the techniques used taking the slides.

Officers elected were: Dr. Forrest A. Stepp, president. Margaret Scott, vice president, and Nancy Byrd, secretary treasurer.

Following the slide presentation a lengthy discussion was held ona variety of subjects concerning photography and film. Dr. Stepp ordered several photography text books for members and Scott Matthews presented a pamphlet on an upcoming short couse photography school.

Next month's meeting will be July 27 at 7:30 p.m. at the Security Federal Savings and Loan community room. Anyone interested in photography is invited.

Amazing Amazons

Amazon is Greek for "without breast." Greek mythology told of a race of female warriors living without men, sending away or killing any sons born. The women had their right breasts burned off so they could more easily draw the bow. The word is used today when speaking of brawny women.

Former Byrds leader puts new band together

PASSAIC, N.J. (AP) — Roger McGuinn is back.

McGuinn was the leader of The Byrds, America's answer to the Beatles in the rock music boom of the mid-1960s. The Byrds bridged the gap between traditional folk music and British rock and reached stardom with such songs as "Mr. Tambourine Man," "Eight Miles High" and "Turn, Turn, Turn."

Despite endless personnel changes, The Byrds became favorites of a growing FM radio audience in the late 1960s with their electronic experimentation and synthesis of country and rock sounds. McGuinn disbanded the group in 1972 but failed as a solo act, both on stage and on record.

So he's assembled a permanent band, cut a strong new album and hit the road with a stage show featuring many of the old Byrds tunes that first brought him fame.

"I wrote a lot of those songs. I feel that they're my music, not Byrds music," McGuinn said while relaxing after a performance here.

"This is the first time since The Byrds that I can say I've got a band. The others were just backup groups, just people I picked up to go on tour with. And these are the finest players I could find. Rick Vito is from (John) Mayall, Greg Thomas was Leon Russell's drummer and bassist Charlie (Harrison) is from Leo Sayer."

McGuinn calls the band Thunderbyrd, tying in his Byrd days with his participation in Bob Dylan's "Rolling Thunder Revue." After two months of playing together, their sound is, well, like the middle period Byrds.

There are no smoke bombs or laser illusions on stage — just a solid four-piece band playing top-notch rock music.

"We're shooting for the top, trying to really do it — going for the success of The Eagles and others up there. Really going for it," he said.

The level of success may depend on whether the band can hit the AM charts The Byrds scorned late in their career. McGuinn is pinning his hopes on "American Girl," a pleasant rocker with a strong chorus that features Vito's stinging lead guitar and the jingle-jangle sound of McGuinn's distinctive 12-string guitar.

"My management and I decided it was to our mutual advantage to shoot for a Top 40 hit. There's nothing wrong about that; the Beatles and Rolling Stones were hit groups, and Fleetwood Mac and The Eagles are doing it now.

McGuinn's career reflects the changing music scene of the last 15 years.

Grandma's Corner

By Jill Corti

Today we will pass along some helpful kitchen hints for those of us who often spill things in the oven or haven't quite figured out how to make non lumpy gravey.

Foods that have boiled over in the stove or oven will not smoke or emit odors if covered with salt.

Lumpy gravy can be avoided by adding a little salt to the flour before adding the water and stirring with afork.

Oil paintings may be cleaned by washing very carefully with warm water and milk. Allow to dry without rinsing.

Cotton fabrics may be kept from running by adding a little black pepper to the suds before washing.

Lemon or orange peel rubbed over pans and silverware will remove unpleasant odors.

At Wit's End

Erma the family mediator

By ERMA BOMBECK

One of the chores that was never mentioned in my job description when I became a wife and mother was that of mediator between the Family Doctor and the Family Sickee.

You know how it goes. Your child comes in from play and says, "I don't feel well. My legs feel like they got little needles all over them, my head hurts real bad, I got a big pain right here on my side, and I can't see real well. Everything turns black and I'm dizzy and burning up and then I got this real chill and sometimes there's a ringing in my ears and..."

As you herd the child into bed, your blood turns to ice as you hurriedly call the doctor.

"Could you bring him to the office around 3:00?" he asks.

Every maternal hair on your neck stands up. "You are assuming that he will last until 3:00. I want you to come here!"

Sometimes my performance is so convincing a doctor will actually stop off on his way home. He enters the room of the Sickee.

At the sight of the doctor the kid starts to move about like a Japanese volleyball team. He springs into the air, falls on the mattress on his face, giggling and laughing, hiding behind the pillow, bring out his pupets, turning on the record player, dancing and singing into the doctor's stathscope.

"Is this the child who is going to that big playroom in the sky?" he asks tiredly. Then turning to the child he asks, "Is there a pain here?"

The child falls down giggling.

"What about here?"

He shakes his head no until I think he will screw himself into the bed.

"A laxative should do it," says the doctor, closing the bag.

My husband is no better. After he relates all his symptoms to me, I relate them to the doctor and then report, "The doctor says he would like to meet you in the emergency ward of the hospital."

"That's ridiculous," he says. "I'm not in THAT much pain. What did you tell him?"

"I used your words, 'You're young. I want you to marry again.'"

"And for THAT he wanted me to come to the hospital?"

I have been put in the middle so many times that I am sometimes reluctant to call the doctor. The last time my son complained of a knee injury I put it aside for a day or so. When we finally got to the doctor he said, "Didn't the boy complain?"

"Actually, he did," I said, "but I thought I could pull it off as the final billing date ends the 30th."

I have seen the look he gave me on only one other occasion. It was when Gen. Yoshijiro Umeza tried to shake Gen. Douglas MacArthur's hand when Japan surrendered at the end of World War II.

POLLY'S POINTERS

DEAR POLLY — My Pet Peeve is with the pockets that most clothing manufacturers put in men's work pants. We pay from fifteen to twenty dollars for each pair of such pants and after three weeks of wear the pockets are of no use at all. It's as if the material used for them is almost like cheesecloth. The pants are well made but the pockets come apart. — MRS. G.F.

DEAR POLLY — I have made good use of the side of my refrigerator that stands out away from the wall. A large hook was put in the wall and all of my appliance cords hang on it. They are easy to get to and not all mixed up as they might be in a drawer. — JEAN.

DEAR POLLY — The Pointer in your column about removing paint from the hands with turpentine or kerosene is true but either of these may irritate the skin. The same result can be obtained by using baby oil. It is kind to the skin and more pleasant to smell. We always keep a bottle even though there has been no baby around for 20 years. — CHARLES.

Dear Ann Landers

Reader has 'klutz' complex

Dear Ann Landers: My problem in three words--I'm a klutz. The embarrassment and shame I've suffered from spilling things, breaking things, dropping things, stumbling, falling--is more than I can take.

Everything I do screams "KLUTZ." When I shuffle cards, serve a glass of water, walk into a room, I feel like a clumsy ox--inept and left-footed.

Life would be a breeze instead of a hurricane if I were more graceful--or at least a little better coordinated. Please don't send me to ballet school, just tell me how to develop poise at home.--Klutzy Carol (Age 19)

Dear Carol: Most klutziness in the result of (a) hurrying,, (b) being absent-minded--no concentration on what one is doing.

Slow down and make a conscious effort to do every small thing as gracefully as possible. You're bound to see an improvement, Lovey.

P.S. Can it be that you are subconsciously klutzing it up a little to call attention to yourself? Some people would rather be laughed at than ignormed. Think of these things.

Dear Ann Landers: A continuing family problem prompts my first letter to your column, regarding the writer from Philadelphia who keeps sending gifts and checks and gets no thanks or acknowledgments from nieces and nephews.

Out of a family of four children we have a 12-year-old boy (I can sit down and guide him through the thank you's, no problem), an 18-year-old girl who responds warmly, and promptly, without prodding, a 22-year-old who responds warmly, but not too promptly, and a 20-year-old son who stubbornly refuses to write a thank-you note, no matter how I beg or plead and try to shame him into it.

When I see a relative who has sent a gift to this impossible boy I make some feeble attempt to apologize. It goes against my grain but I feel I must say something.

If you have a solution to the problem I would love to hear it. In the meantime, I resent the accusation that I did not raise him properly. He knows what to do. He just won't do it.--Not Guilty In Endwell, N.Y.,.

Dear Not Guilty: Can it be that your 20-year-old clod refuses to acknowledge gifts because he likes to bug you?

I suggest the following: When a gift for him arrives, phone the sender--tell him or her it was a lovely, thoughtful gesture.

Also say, "Unfortunately the young man is very remiss when it comes to acknowledging gifts and this , of course, distresses me. Please don't send him another gift ever again, if he fails to say thank you for this one. I, as his mother, would consider it a great favor."

Dear Ann Landers: A friend of mine is married to the youngest son of a large family. Her husband, Ferdinand, has five brothers--all older. Their wives seem to produce nothing but girls. At last count Ferdinand and Cheryl had 17 nieces.

Cheryl became pregnant recently. She is determined to have a boy and has been eating herbs and root food (carrot, turnips and beets) like mad. Her grandmother says this will produce a male child. True or false?--Big Q

Dear Q: The sex of a child is determined at the moment of conception. Whatever she is carrying has already been decided.

Confused about what's right and what's wrong in today's 'new morality''? You're not alone. If you want honest, down-to-earth information on your sex questions, read Ann Landers's new booklet, "High School Sex and How to Deal With It--A guide for Teens and Their Parents." Send 50 cents in coin plus a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

Stanky decides to quit Texas

MOBILE, Ala. (AP) — Eddie Stanky, feeling homesick for Mobile, has quit as manager of the Texas Rangers one day after joining the club, it was reported today.

Mel Lucas, athletic director of the University of South Alabama, confirmed a report by the Mobile Press that Stanky was returning to Mobile today and leaving pro baseball.

He said Stanky's wife, Dickie, told him of the sudden change of plans and "she was shocked as well as all of us."

In Minnesota, where the Rangers were scheduled to play the Twins today, the Rangers were reportedly huddling, with an announcement expected to come out of the meeting.

Stanky, 59, startled many of his friends when he decided to leave South Alabama, where he has coached baseball for nine years, and return to the big leagues replacing Frank Lucchesi as manager of the Rangers.

Stanky joined the club Wednesday and was a winner in his debut—a 10-8 victory over the Twins.

Saints call off pair

Work conflicts, costing the Sikeston Saints at least four starting players, have forced the postponement of Saturday's scheduled doubleheader with the Villa Reds out of St. Louis. The game will not be rescheduled.

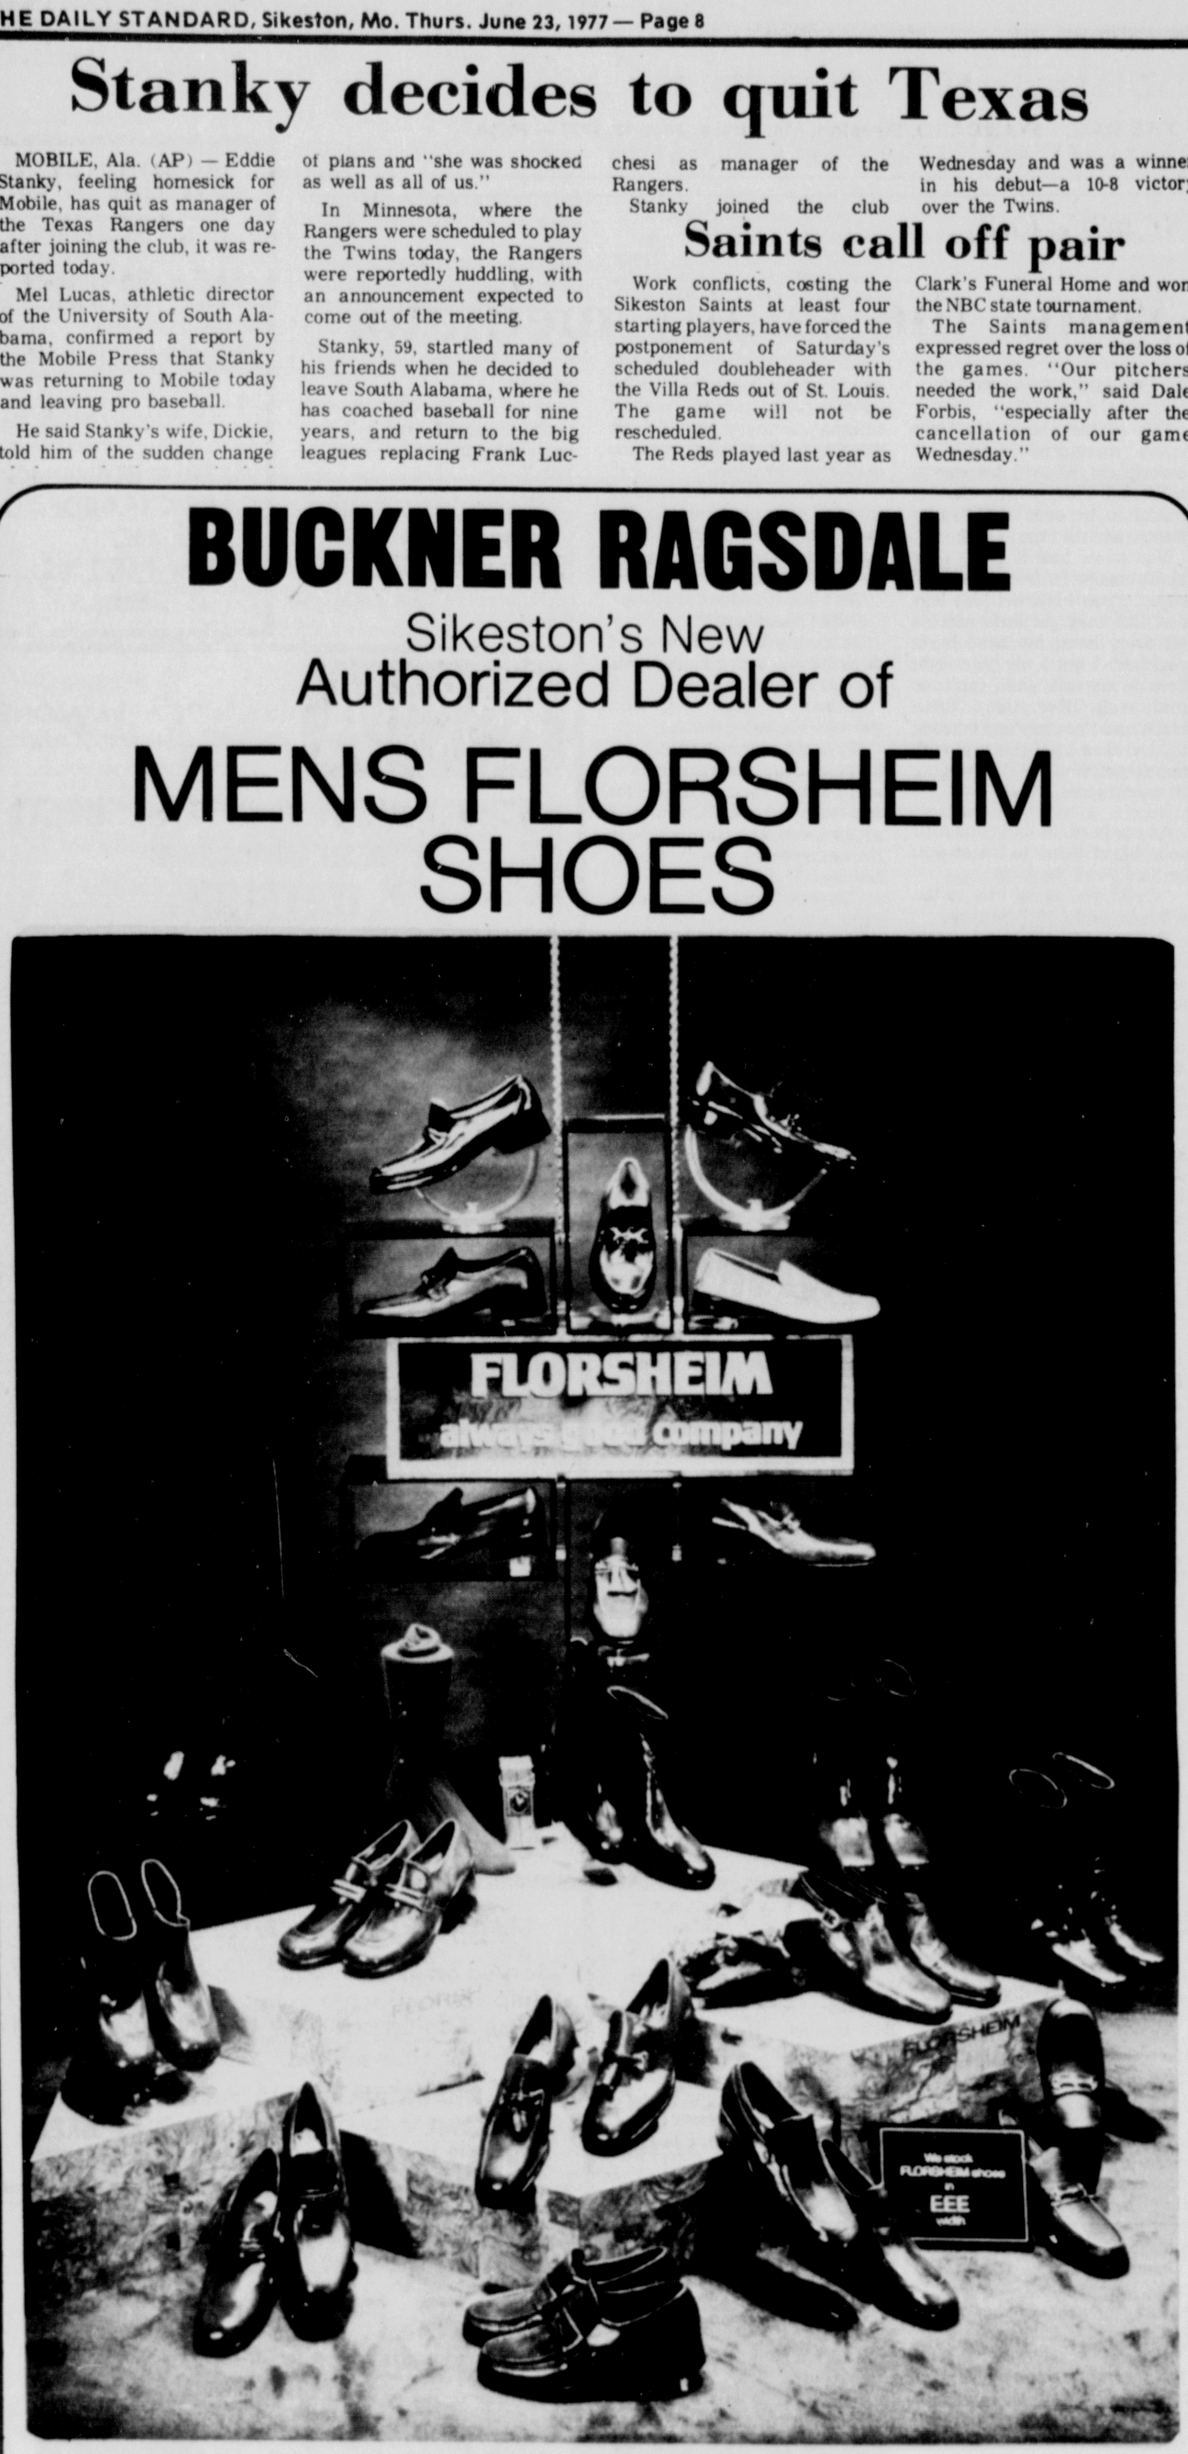

The Reds played last year as Clark's Funeral Home and won the NBC state tournament.

The Saints management expressed regret over the loss of the games. "Our pitchers needed the work," said Dale Forbis, "especially after the cancellation of our game Wednesday."

Moore runs no-hit string to 16 plus

Last night was yet another fine evening of Little League action at the Sikeston Complex. National League action was highlighted by a 5-3 victory by Pizza Inn over Lions. In this game, Mike Moore threw a six inning no-hitter to run his string to 16 and two-thirds innings of hitless baseball. In fact, no batter has gotten a hit off Moore this season.

In the first game red hot Kiwanis beat second place Legion 9-8. Kiwanis collected ten hits off Legion pitching and scored three big runs in the fifth to assure the win. Legion had scored five in the top of the fifth to take a one run lead and scored once in the sixth but fell short. Orlando Butler was pinned with the loss for Legion while Bobby Stinnitt was the winner.

Moore's no-hitter plus his 2-for-2 batting was the key to Pizza Inn's victory. Lions threw their best as Marland Beaudean started and got the loss. The win for Pizza Inn gives them a mark of 8-0 and sole possession of first place. Lions remain in a tie for second with Legion and Kiwanis at 5-3.

Musial League had its share of fine action also. Bank of Sikeston came within an eyelash of beating first place Rotary but couldn't get the big hit and lost 9-8. Bank of Sikeston scored eight times in the first two innings but was shut out from then on. Rotary scored five times in the fourth, then sent the winning run across in the bottom of the final inning. Billy Pennington was the eventual winner for Rotary and Joy McMillen was the loser for Bank of Sikeston.

The second game of Musial action saw Meredith Realty beat Hart's Bread 8-2. Winning pitcher Jim Perkins rapped a double and two singles to pace the Meredith hitting. Mike Goergen was tagged with the loss for Hart's.

The wild American race got even closer as Collins Realty, tied for first place, was knocked off by Moore's Firestone 8-7. The first two saw both teams score all their runs and Scott Carmody get the final victory for Moore's. Moore's had 14 base raps with winner Carmody and Toney Wrather having a perfect 3-for-3 night. On the other hand, Collins collected 16 base knocks but failed to put them together. Barry Alberson and Riley Davis went 4-for-4 to pace the Collins hitting attack. Alberson looked good with the bat but was the losing pitcher.

Second place Ziegenhorn was knocked off by Bridger Plumbing 12-11. Bridger collected their second win this week their only wins of the season. Bridger did not lose their composure as Ziegenhorn scored ten times in the fourth to take a 11-10 lead. Bridger simply held Ziegenhorn in the fifth and scored two of their own in the sixth to win the game. Tracy Evans grabbed the win with Brett Arsta taking it on the chin.

Triangle overcomes walks

Triangle Industries hurlers gave up 17 walks against the Jaycees Wednesday night, but the league leaders still managed to hold on to down their opponents 23-22 in the wildest gave in the Sikeston Womens and Girls Softball Association.

The Jaycees had only three hits in the game, but capitalized on the wildness of the Triangle pitchers to score 22 times, including 16 in the fourth inning that brought them to within two runs after trailing 20-2 going in.

Triangle hitters pounded out 12 hits in support of Simpson and Pobst. Pobst got credit for the hurling victory, starting the game and ten coming in to the mound again later on.

Dawn Hurley ripped three hits as Kiwanis defeated Sikeston IGA 15-5 in Major Division play. Throgmorton held IGA to only three hits while recording the victory.

Brown and Hart slugged three hits apiece as First National topped Mid-Delta Insurance 18-14 in another Major Division contest. A seven-run explosion by the winners in the third provided them with the cushion they needed as Vangilder earned the mound triumph. Losing pitcher Shumpert had three hits to lead the losing cause for Mid-Delta.

Nastase survives 2nd-round tester

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) – Ilie Nastase has done it again.

The antics of the fiery Romanian on court Wednesday as he scrambled his way through to the third round were as wild as the time two years ago when he grabbed a Wimbledon fan's umbrella and took it on court with him — all to urge the umpire to halt play in a light mist.

Do any of the childish tantrums help the 30-year-old Nastase achieve results his artistry with a tennis racquet couldn't?

Wimbledon commentators say Nastase is the greatest player ever to come to these lawn tennis championships and fail to win. Ranked No. 6 in the world, Nastase was the losing finalist here in 1972 and 1976. He is seeded sixth this year.

Wednesday's trouble erupted in the fourth set of Nastase's match against Andrew Pattison of Rhodesia. Pattison took the first two sets 9-7, 6-3, beating Nastase at his own game with clever passing shots, dinks and cut shots.

Nastase came back to win the third set 7-5, but Pattison got a crucial 4-3 lead in the following set by breaking Nastase's serve in the seventh game.

The Romanian appeared upset at a foot fault called against him. He argued with the linesman and umpire, then ducked behind the green canvas surrounding the No. 2 court, to the bewilderment of his opponent and the delight of the packed crowd.

Wimbledon referee Fred Hoyle was summoned and Nastase was warned to play on. Some 10 minutes elapsed before he resumed play, and the game quickly swung his way. He broke Pattison's service to even the games at 4-4. More antics followed — complaining about the state of the grass and the noise in the crowd — and one spectator yelled: "Shut up and play tennis." Others simply booed.

Nastase buckled down to his game, broke service in the 14th game and took the set 8-6. One service break in the fifth and final set was all he needed for the match.

But Pattison refused to come to the net to shake hands.

"I think he bahaved abominably," said the Rhodesian. "He was breaking the rules of the game that play must be continuous, and insulting and abusing the umpire and linesmen. He did it at a very crucial stage when I was leading with a service break. It was no coincidence."

But Nastase had an explanation for the whole episode when he met reporters, and showed no signs of repentance.

Deer season is Nov. 19-27

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Missouri Conservation Commission has set Nov. 19-27 for the 1977 deer season, but has instituted slightly more restrictions in some areas from the 1976 season.

The archery season will be identical to the 1976 season, from Oct. 1 through Dec. 31 with one deer of either sex permitted, except that it will be closed during the Nov. 19-27 gun season.

There also will be several historic weapon and archery hunts with details to be set later, the commission said.

Units one in northwest Missouri, four in western Missouri, 10 in the Bootheel and 11 in south-central Ozarks will be limited to bucks only the entire season.

Units two in north-central Missouri, seven in southwest Missouri and eight in south-central Missouri will also be limited to bucks except on Nov. 26 when any deer can be taken.

Unit three in northeast Missouri will be limited to bucks except for Nov. 26-27.

Unit five in central Missouri will have an antlerless deer quota of 2,750, unit six in eastern Missouri a quota of 1,250, unit nine in the extreme southeast Ozarks a quota of 2,100 and unit 12 in the Missouri River hills between Jefferson City and St. Louis a quota of 5,200. Bucks will also be permitted in those four units.

Shockley's eagle costs Godwin Amateur lead

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — Stewart Shockley said he just couldn't believe it and it probably seemed equally as unbelievable to Buddy Godwin.

Shockley sank a 160-yard two iron shot on the par four 17th hole for an eagle Wednesday to capture medalist honors with a six under par 138 in the Missouri Amateur Golf Tournament.

Shockley, a Kansas City golfer who won medalist honors three weeks ago in the Kansas Amateur, was in the same foursome with Godwin, a Poplar Bluff golfer who was one stroke up going into 17. Godwin parred 17 and bogeyed 18 to finish two back at 140.

Shockley led the opening round Tuesday with a 68, two strokes better than Godwin's opening day performance. At the end of the front nine Wednesday, Shockley was two strokes down for the tournament but he bettered Godwin on 10 and 14 to tie. Godwin pulled ahead with a birdie on 14, but it was all over after Shockley's second shot on 17.

The ball bounced once on the fringe and dove straight into the hole without touching the pin.

"I just couldn't believe it," Shockley said. "I hit it low just enough to make it bite. It had a lot of action."

Two strokes behind Godwin was Jim Holtgrieve of St. Louis with a 142, followed by Bruce Hollowell of Springfield with a 143.

Dennis Goettell of Carthage, who was second with a 70 Tuesday, shot a 74 Wednesday to finish with a 144.

The best round Wednesday was fired by Fred Copeland of Columbia who got a 69 to finish with a 145. He was tied with Steve Bush of Blue Springs.

The championship round of the tournament is scheduled for Saturday.

Here are the qualifiers after Wednesday's second round of the Missouri Amateur Golf Tournament on the par 72 Columbia course.

Dodgers rip Redbirds; look to Cincinnati

LOS ANGELES (AP) — After Los Angeles crushed St. Louis 12-1 Wednesday night, improving its lead in the National League West to 8½ games, thoughts immediately turned to what lies ahead for the Dodgers, a four-game series with the Cincinnati Reds.

"We're ready for the Reds," said Manager Tom Lasorda. "It's a tremendous feeling to leave for a big series following a game like that."

"We're certainly prepared for the series," said Steve Garvey, who knocked in five of the Dodgers' runs Wednesday night, four on his first career grand-slam homer. "After our last trip (2-5), I figured all we needed was some home cooking."

The series at Cincinnati begins tonight. Tommy John, 7-4, will pitch for Los Angeles against Tom Seaver, 8-3.

Los Angeles won seven of nine games on the homestand completed Wednesday night against Pittsburgh, Chicago and St. Louis, gaining 1½ games on Cincinnati in that span.

Tom Underwood, 3-3, took the loss in his first start for St. Louis. He was knocked out during the Dodgers' six-run fourth. Clay Carroll and John Urrea fared no better, giving up seven of Los Angeles' cuns between them.

Dolly Parton parts company with Nashville

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "I'm like anybody else — I want to see what all I can do while the doin's good."

Toward that end, Dolly Parton has high-tailed it out of Nashville, where the doin's have been good, indeed, and headed for Hollywood, where she hopes they'll get even better.

The Queen of Country has set her sights on the pop-rock market, an audience that has been increasingly willing to lend an ear to the Nashville product. Other stars — Linda Ronstadt, Olivia Newton-John — have found the going quite lucrative once they crossed the dimming country-pop boundary.

"I want to keep my country audience," Dolly says, "but I want to try to appeal to another following that I have had for quite some time (the denim and dope set). I have never really exercised that area. I've never gone to where they could see me or put out the kind of records they want to hear."

Dolly didn't falter when she made up her mind she wanted to explore greener fields. She booked a six-week tour taking her to some of the country's better known rock-oriented watering holes — including the Roxy here, San Francisco's Boarding House and The Bottom Line in New York.

She gave the pink slip to her Nashville agent in favor of a slick Hollywood firm and released an album, "New Harvest, First Gathering," which, though not quite rock, isn't exactly haystacks and fiddles, either.

And in what she calls her most "hurtful" move, Dolly fired her Travelin' Family Band, a collection of country kinfolk she says couldn't play the kind of music she wanted to make, and hired Gypsy Fever, a group more suited for her plans.

"Of course, the Travelin' Family Band, they were made up mostly of relatives," she says, "and my family and me were so close.

Supreme Court refuses to review libel ruling

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court Monday refused to review a lower court's ruling that libel suits against newspapers may be tried in state courts far from the paper's home base and predominant circulation area.

The justices let stand a ruling that said the Times Mirror Co., publisher of the Los Angeles Times, can be sued for libel in Wyoming by two political figures in that state.

In seeking Supreme Court review, attorneys for the newspaper said the lower court's decision would have a "chilling impact" on freedom of the press.

In a July 5, 1974 article about crime in Wyoming and other western states, the Times reported that Donald Ray Anselmi, state Democratic party chairman, and Raymond B. Whitaker, a former state Democratic chairman, had testified before a federal grand jury. The article said the two had been asked if they bought guns in Wyoming which they knew had been stolen in California.

The article also said that federal prosecutors were trying to determine if Anselmi and Whitaker were "involved in more serious matters."

In 1975, Anselmi and Whitaker sued the Times Mirror Co. for libel. Information in the Times article was carried on the wires of The Associated Press and United Press International. Both news services were named as defendants in the libel suit, along with the Denver Post and Cheyenne Newspapers, publisher of newspapers in that Wyoming city.

Proceedings in the state libel case, however, have been delayed pending the Times' appeal challenging the jurisdiction of Wyoming's courts.

A federal judge in Wyoming ruled that the state courts could not hear the case but his decision was reversed by the 10th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

That court said, in part, that because the information for the articpe was gathered by Times' reporters who traveled to Wyoming and the article had impact in Wyoming, state courts could handle the libel suit.

Less than 10 copies of the Los Angeles Times are delivered to Wyoming subscribers each day, and the Times maintains no office or staff in the state.

In its appeal to the Supreme Court, the Times said that if it were subjected to suits "in areas of the United States and the world inconvenient for its California location...the financial and time burdens thereby imposed would severely inhibit the ability of the newspaper to perform its function."

Times' attorneys argued that past Supreme Court rulings in freedom-of-the-press cases which have protected newspapers from harassing lawsuits which could make them become less willing to cover controversial topics.

Canning tomatoes safe if done right

WASHINGTON (AP) — Government scientists say "if proper procedures are used" home gardeners can look forward to canning their own tomatoes without fear of them developing a deadly form of food poison.

The Agriculture Department said Monday a two-year study of more than 350 tomato varieties showed the fruit normally contains enough natural acid to prevent the growth of bacteria which causes botulism.

But the department said home canners can easily add citric acid or lemon juice to their tomatoes as further insurance against botulism.

The study to assess the safety of home-canned tomatoes was conducted by USDA's Eastern Regional Research Center, Wyndmoor, Pa., after questions were raised several years ago about the possibility of botulism resulting from so-called "low acid" tomatoes canned at home.

Officials said the tests "show that there has been no consist change in tomato acidity of varieties introduced over the last 25 years," although four varieties are low in acid and should not be used for home canning.

One of these, Garden State, was low enough in acid "to possibly permit growth" of Clostridium botulinusm, the organism that causes botulism. However, officials said, Garden State tomatoes, introduced in 1945, are not commercially available now.

Three other varieties — Ace, Ace 55 VF and Cal Ace — are low in acid. They were developed for commercial growers who produce tomatoes for the fresh market and should not be used for home canning.

"The scientists found no other ripe, normal tomatoes with acid levels in the range that would permit growth of C. Botulism," the department said.

The research, led by Dr. Gerald M. Sapers of the USDA's Agricultural Research Service, showed that one-fourth teaspoon of citric acid or one tablespoon of bottled lemon juice in each pint will increase tomato acidity and produce no off flavors.

Vinegar is not as effective as citric acid or lemon juice and causes an off flavor in canned tomatoes, the scientists found. A commercially prepared "acidification" table also was not as effective.

The report said that "proper procedures" begin with the selection of tomatoes that are not overripe or decayed. Further, home canners should follow "tested and approved" procedures such as in USDA's publication, HG-8, "Home Canning of Fruits and Vegetables" which may be available from county extension offices.

The publication can be ordered for 45 cents a copy from the U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402.

"What the public has been told about yellow, orange and small tomatoes being low in acid and not suitable for home canning is a fallacy," the report said. "According to the data, tomatoes of the small and light-colored varieties actually tend to be higher in acid than other tomato types.

The acid taste in some high-acid tomatoes may be masked by a high sugar content."

The environment in which tomatoes are grown or the condition of the vines can affect tomato acidity.

One sample of the Fireball variety, for example, was picked after the vines were dead. Although the tomatoes appeared normal, 38 per cent of them were low enough to permit growth of the bacteria.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Beef, milk and peaches head the Agriculture Department's "plentiful" foods list for July.

Although beef production will be down 4 to 6 per cent from a year ago, USDA says in a monthly "food marketing alert" that next month's supply still will be larger than average for mid-year.

A smaller supply of grass-fed cattle is the main reason for beef supplies being down from a year ago, officials said Monday. Grain-fed beef, meanwhile, is more abundant.

According to USDA definition, plentiful means "more than adequate for requirements." Adequate is "enough to meet needs," and light is "less than adequate, not enough for normal needs."

Pork, broilers, eggs and turkeys, along with fresh potatoes and onions, were rated adequate for July.

An abundance of fresh peaches also is expected next month, reflecting big harvests in California and southern states. The report had this advice:

"Don't judge a peach by its blush. The red color is not always a good indicator of the ripeness. Look at the background color. It should be creamy to a very mellow yellow color. Also, look at it for well-defined creases. Fragrance can also be an indicator of ripeness."

WASHINGTON (AP) — Production of broiler-type chicks totalled nearly 336.9 million in May, the third straight month of record output by the nations's hatcheries, the Agriculture Department said Monday.

The chicks will begin reaching the consumer market later this summer as dressed broilers. Production in April was about 324.4 million birds hatched, and March output was 322.9 million.

According to USDA records, the previous high mark for broiler chick hatchings was 321.1 miillion in May of last year.

Advisory committee

New volume added to regional library

JACKSON— An addition to the genealogy section at the Riverside Regional Library is a compliation of Alexander County, Ill. cemeteries. This volume, a gift of the editors and publisher, contains priceless information that otherwise would be lost to future generations.

The district board of the Pulaski-Alexander Soil and Water Conservation District has published the book, with information gathered and edited by Mrs. Elaine Bonifield, Miller City, Ill., and Mrs. Louise P. Ogg, Unity, Ill. "Alexander County Cemeteries, Alexander County, Ill." was printed by the Graphis Arts students of the Cairo-Egyptian Adult Center in Cairo.

In presenting the book to the Riverside Regional Library, Mrs. Bonifield stressed that it is the hope of the editors and publisher that its information be made available to interested individuals in as wide an area as possible.

Conviction upheld in Bluff murder case

SPRINGFIELD (AP)— The Missouri Court of Appeals in Springfield has upheld the Poplar Bluff conviction of John Dale Henson in the fatal shooting of his 14-year-old nephew in April of 1975.

He was sentenced to 35 years in prison on the second-degree murder conviction.

Testimony at the trial indicated Henson and a friend had been drinking most of the day the fatal shot was fired. Witnesses said Henson had gone to the trailer home where the victim and his grandmother were sleeping and badgered the woman to fix him something to eat.

The victim, 14-year-old Jackie Fletcher, at one point grabbed a butcher knife and threatened Henson who ran to his car, returned with a gun and fired one shot. The appeals court ruled it was not a case of self defense because Henson left the scene and returned to resume the hostilities.

Election law revision will lead to efficiency

Jefferson City— Passage of a massive overhaul of Missouri's election laws by the General Assembly signals the way to greater efficiency in all elections, Secretary of State James C. Kirkpatrick predicts.

"Legislative approval of the comprehensive Election Act of 1977 is the culmination of 10 years of effort by concerned election authorities and legislators to enact an extensive modernization of our state's election laws," Secretary Kirkpatrick said.

"Savings, simplification and standardization are the key elements of the new law," Kirkpatrick said. "By reducing our election laws roughly in half, they will be easier to understand and administer."

The recodification effort had the support of the Missouri County Clerks Association, the urban election boards and Governor Joseph Teasdale, who made it part of his legislative package.

"This is a major accomplishment achieved by unity and a commitment to give the people of Missouri efficient election machinery," Kirkpatrick said.

The new law will take effect Jan. 1. Major provisions that will result in a substantial savings of tax money include:

--Reducing the number of election days to a maximum of six.

--Reducing the number of absentee ballots from four to two, and the number of election judges required at each polling place where paper ballots are used from six to four, the same as currently permitted for polling places with punch card devices and lever machines.

--Precincts may also be consolidated for all elections.

--Registration by mail will be extended to all counties and the City of St. Louis.

--Voter registration will close at the same time throughout the state--the fourth Wednesday before the election.

Persons who had formerly forfeited the right to vote because of violations of the law will have that right restored by the new Act once they have been released from the Department of Corrections.

As chief election official of the state, Secretary Kirkpatrick said he was especially pleased with the reduction of the filing period for candidates after the primary election of 1978. The Act provides candidates for state office may file beginning the second Tuesday in January and no later than the last Tuesday in April in the election year.

"With any bill this size, we expected some disappointments. We had hoped the legislature would keep the original language which designated a single election authority in each county. We believe, however, the Act will still significantly improve election administration.

'Skip' closes gaps between CB'ers

WASHINGTON (AP) — If you thought the "skip" was loud last summer, just turn on your CB radio again. What you're hearing is a prelude to what you may hear for the next few years.

For skip, the phenomenon by which radio waves bounce off the atmosphere back to earth hundreds or thousands of miles away, is expected to increase dramatically through 1980 or so.

Calls of "Skipland, Skipland, Skipland" already can be heard with increasing frequency on the AM mode of CB radios, seeking a response from faraway places. Calls from Florida, Missouri, Michigan.

At the same time, on the sideband side, one regularly hears "CQ-DX, CQ-DX, CQ-DX,," the code seeking a response from any distant station.

And back come the replies: From Alabama, Arkansas, Texas, California — from across the nation, Canada and Central and South America.

Occasional skip is not new to experienced CBers. But many newcomers hearing the phenomenon for the first time find it hard to understand how their sets with a normal range of 10 to 30 miles can pick up signals from stations hundreds of miles away.

For the last few years, skip has been mostly a summertime thing, fading away for the most part during the winter months. But that may change this fall, when the skip begins to be heard throughout the year.

Most CB radio signals travel along what are called ground planes, following the curvature of the earth. But some transmissions become sky waves, traveling up through the clouds.

Ordinarily, sky waves continue into space before eventually dissipating. But when the E-layer of the atmosphere — 30 to 300 miles above earth — is ionized by the sun's ultraviolet and X-ray radiation, its electrons act as antennas, retransmitting radio signals back to earth strong enough to be heard.

That ordinary, summertime skip comes and goes, occurring mostly from May through August although intermittently during winter months. It is most pronounced during the late morning hours and again during the early evening.

But the sunspots are coming, and with them year-round skip.

Sunspots are caused by massive solar explosions, resulting in bursts of ultraviolet rays. This activity occurs with varying frequency, but most often in cycles peaking every 11 years or so.

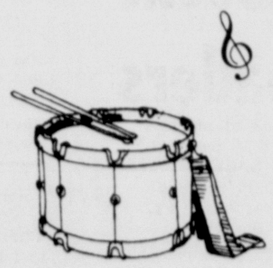

The last peak was 1968-69 and we're just coming out of its low-activity period. The next high spot is expected about 1980, with the build-up beginning this fall.

"Long may she wave o're the land of the free and the home of the brave." Doesn't a band make your blood tingle, your eyes brighten, your shoulders a little straighter — and your pride to be an American just a bit stronger? Of course it does and that's why we should display our national banner on every flag flying holiday — or any other time we are especially proud to be living in this great land — the United States of America.

200 years ago this June 14, as our fledgling country was in the most unbelievable struggle to gain its independence, our Congress established the basic design of our flag — ". . . thirteen stripes alternating red and white; that the union be thirteen stars, white in a blue field, representing a new constellation."

And so during this Birthday Year — 1977 — let's break out Old Glory and fly it high, wide and handsome. We offer at cost as a Patriotic Public Service a complete home flag kit— 3 x 5-foot double-stitched heavy cotton flag — a 6-foot jointed 2-piece staff with eagle ornament — a heavy mounting bracket with screws — all in a sturdy 2-piece storage carton with full color flag history folder. What's the law?

The case of the menacing meat

By JACK STRAUSS, LL.B.

Donna was determined to profit from her marriage. She insured her husband's life for $25,000--without his knowing about it--and then planned to exterminate him. To that end, she broiled her husband a steak, sprinkled it generously with rat poison and served it up to him for dinner.

As fate would have it, however, Donna's husband wasn't hungry. What's more, he fed the steak to the family dog. And, within minutes, the luckless dog rolled over dead.

In short order, Donna's get-rich-quick scheme was uncovered by her husband and he sued the insurance company for issuing a policy on his life without his knowledge.

"I'm entitled to plenty!" he insisted in court." The insurance company nearly got me killed. By giving my cold-blooded wife that policy, the insurance company set me up to be laid out."

"Giving a woman a policy on her husband's life," responded the attorney for the insurance company, "is perfectly normal. What wasn't normal was Donna's motive. But we can't be blamed for that."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you make the insurance company pay damages for nearly getting Donna's husband killed?

This is how the judge ruled: YES. The judge held that it is is against public policy to issue an insurance policy on the life of a person without his knowledge or consent. Such policies, noted the judge, are illegal and dangerous as a fruitful source of crime.

Dry conditions improve little after showers

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — Missouri farmers welcomed the weekend rains after reports by the Missouri Crop and Livestock Reporting Service indicated very dry conditions across the state.

Last week's scattered showers were not enough to improve the already deteriorating crop and pasture conditions by last Saturday.

Farmers ready to plant double crop soybeans were waiting for another shower. But the lack of rain and fair weather gave farmers 5.9 suitable days for fieldwork last week.

Soil moisture supplies were rated at 90 per cent short and 10 per cent adequate.

Planting of double crop soybeans began following wheat harvest and is now 35 per cent complete. Soybeans stands in some areas showed signs of damage from herbicide carryover.

The winter wheat is now 83 per cent ripened, up nearly 40 points from last week. This compares to 48 per cent ripe at this time last year andis about two weeks ahead of normal.

Winter wheat harvest is now in full swing as 42 per cent is out of the field, about one week ahead of normal for this date.

Farmers spent much of this week's field time making hay. Second cutting alfalfa hay is now 29 per cent harvested, about one week ahead of last yeyar and normal.

Clover timothy hay harvest is now 72 per cent complete, up 20 points from last week and two weeks ahead of normal.

Last week's hot, dry weather deteriorated corn and pasture conditions. Corn was rated 5 per cent poor, 42 per cent fair, 48 per cent good, and 5 per cent excellent with several reports indicating that leaves were begining to roll under stesss.

Action slated in 5 water pollution cases

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — At least four Missouri industries and possibly one municipality could be subjected to enforcement action next month for excessive water pollution.

State environmental quality officials declined to identify the five. But they said the action will result from their failure to meet the federal government's July 1 deadline for cleaning up waterways.

"We know the ones that will not meet the date and we're working with them now, but there are some in the state that are really not trying to do all they can do to meet the date," said James Odendahl, director of the state Clean Water Commission.

Robert Hentges said the commission staff "will probably initiate some kind of action at the next commission meeting in July. We have had three years for conferences, conciliation and persuasion."

Enforcement action could range from imposition of specific clean-up schedules to lawsuits seeking fines up to $10,000 for each day pollution standards are not met.

The 1972 federal water pollution control law set July 1 for industry to apply the "best practicable" methods of reducing waste discharges into waterways and for municipalities to use secondary facilities to filter and disinfect sewage. Only one Missouir firm has been subjected to fines for violations since 1972.

Hentges said the four industrial firms and the municipality are among 300 companies and more than 100 cities nationwide that the federal Environmental Protection Agency has targeted for possible penalty action over failure to mee the deadline. Should the state fail to act against the firms, the EPA could.

Of 59 major industrial water polluters in the state, Hentges said only 17 will not meet the deadline. But he said 13 of those are either actively building pollution control facilities or are experiencing other mitigating circumstances "and we're definitely not going to take any action against them."

Concerning municipalities, Odendahl said "a great number of people are not going to meet the deadline." But nearly all of those towns have had problems obtaining financing, primarily from the federal government, for treatment plant construction, he said.

The Clean Water Commission is expected to take action this month to assist those industries and communities it does not intend to act against.

N L Industries of St. Louis, which produces a dye pigment, has been the only Missouri firm subjected to monetary fines for violating pollution control standards so far, Hentgest said.

Under a settlement awaiting federal court approval, the firm has agreed to pay $125,000 in civil penalties for past violations and $1,000 a day beginning July 1 until it meets pollution control standards. It it fails to meet the standards by April 1, 1980, when its daily fines will total $1 million, it will begin paying $10,000 a day until the standards are met.

Featured speaker at the annual dinner will be Thomas L. Holling, district director of the U.S. Small Business Administration.

Newly-elected Chamber officers will be introduced and reports made.

Tickets for the dinner are $5.00 per person and must be purchased by Friday from the Chamber of Commerce office. No tickets will be sold at the door. The dinner is scheduled for 7 p.m.

City of Chaffee sues to annex 200 acres

CHAFFEE— Suit for the annexation of approximately 200 acres predominantly on the west and south of the present city limits was heard in Scott County Circuit Court June 14. Scott County Circuit Judge Marshall Craig was disqualified by Manuel Drumm, a Sikeston attorney representing approximately 27 property owners and merchants of the area proposed for annexation. The suit was heard by Flake McHaney, circuit judge of Stoddard and Dunklin Counties.

Chaffee City Attorney Joe Rice III represented the City of Chaffee and called approximately 15 witnesses to show reasonable cause why the area in question should be annexed and become a part of the City of Chaffee.

Chaffee citizens subpoenaed by Rice to testify for the city included Mayor Robert Capshaw, Chaffee Signal Editor Karl von Kessel, Chaffee City Collector Charles Cunningham, businessman Joe Rice Jr., City Engineer Darryl Orr, Alderman Bob Delezene, Chief of Police Ray Olive, Jack T. Burnett, John Edward Smith, Jim Smith of Missouri Utilities Co., Director of Public Works Raymond Rowell, Chaffee City Fire Chief Bill Hagan and J. A. Chronister.

Mayor Capshaw was the first witness to take the stand in support of the suit and in response to questions by Rice described the growth and need for the extension of the city limits. Mayor Capshaw testified that the people living within the proposed annexation were already receiving services of the city such as water, sewer, police and fire protection and also received the benefits of various city installations such as the city library and the city swimming pool. The mayor testified that the people adjoining the Chaffee city limits benefited from the use of the Chaffee streets, lights and services provided by the city.

Chief witness opposing the annexation was Raymond Dame, who owns property, operates a lumber yard, has built four homes and two apartment buildings on the south edge of the city. It was the argument of the opposition to the annexation that the city does not need the additional acreage and to prove their point commented on the number of vacant lots and building sites still within the city. In a telephone conversation Dame commented that the water line into his property was laid by him and his neighbors with no cost to the city and that they pay an additional $2 for the use of the service.

Chief of Police Ray Olive testified the city needs control of Highway 77 which is becoming the main boulevard of the city. At the present time, the Chaffee City Police only have authority on the northbound lane and can only cross over the center line in pursuit when an offense has been committed within the present city limits.

Businesses and property owners who are located adjoining the city do not pay city personal taxes, are not required to have city merchants license, pay no sales tax to the City of Chaffee and also escape the city property tax.

At the conclusion of the trial the attorneys were instructed by Judge McHaney to file briefs pertaining to the annexation suit within 10 days. It is estimated, however, that the judge's decision on the case will not be handed down for a period of approximately six months.

Since then, the gap between supply and demand has widened each winter.

In the winters of 1974-75 and 1975-76, mild weather eased demand and averted any serious shortages. Gas service was temporarily curtailed, but primarily to "interruptible" customers who expect to be cut off once in a while and can adjust to it.

Last winter's severe weather increased heating needs and brought on gas shortages that forced cut-offs of service to many "firm" customers who depend on natural gas all the time.

The prolonged cold made matters even worse by blocking roads and rivers with ice and snow, hampering the transportation of substitute fuels like oil and propane to the gas-short areas.

The FPC reported that some pipelines expect no curtailments of gas service this winter, while others anticipate large curtailments.

6 stewards in Mondale home cost $75,000

WASHINGTON (AP) — When Walter F. Mondale comes home after a hard day of being vice president, he has six Filipino stewards supplied by the Navy waiting to serve him.

An aide to the vice president says the Mondales "don't have any choice." The stewards "are simply assigned there by the Navy."

This military decision costs $75,000 a year, according to a Navy spokesman.

The six stewards work in the Admiral's House, the Victorian home that now serves as the official residence for the vice president.

Located on the grounds of the Naval Observatory on a hill overlooking sloping lawns and trees, the house is set well back from Massachusetts Avenue at the northern end of the fashionable Embassy Row.

It formerly was the residence for the chief of Naval operations.

The six stewards assigned to the vice president cook and serve meals, shop and keep the house clean, from the basement to the circular room in the turret.

The Mondale aide said the assistance of the Navy stewards was needed to run the mansion because it is considerably larger than the home from which the family moved.

"There's no way they could run the house," said the aide, noting that it has a basement kitchen similar to one found in a restaurant.

A woman who cleaned the family's old home once a week before Mondale became vice president still works for the family, visiting the new home once a week to do the laundry and ironing.

Before Mondale became vice president, he and his wife and their three children lived several blocks away in a modest single-family wood-frame house.

Testimony on influence buying

WASHINGTON (AP) — A former head of the Korean Central Intelligence Agency admits he helped set up a Washington social club that was part of a scheme by the South Korean government to buy influence from U.S. congressmen. Kim also told a House international relations subcommittee Wednesday that the South Korean spy agency put up money to provide payoffs to U.S. congressmen.

EPA to seek noise labels

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Environmental Protection Agency, citing the possible health effects of noise pollution, is planning to require manufacturers of certain products to carry noise warnings. Although the EPA shied away from listing specific products to come under the new regulation on Wednesday, there were indications that vacuum cleaners, air conditioners, shop tools, dishwashers and powered lawn mowers would be affected.

Chamber to open land bids

DEXTER— The City Chamber of Commerce met last week and voted to sell two separate tracts of land in order to purchase additional land for future industrial growth.

The first land site, about 10 acres, is located at the corner of Harris Drive and Arvin Road. The area is zoned for I-1, Industrial.

Contractor Gary Dowdy noted that a private firm is interested in purchasing a four to six acre tract of land for light industry use if the price is reasonable.

The Chamber board voted to open bids for the land under certain specifications. This included the bid be made for a 90-day exclusive purchase option. The minimum purchase price of the land would be $30,000 payable in cash upon the exercise of the option and the furnishing of the marketable title by the Dexter City Chamber of Commerce. The option cost would be $100 which would be credited to the purchase price if the option is exercised. If the option is not exercised within 90 days after the bid, the option expires and the $100 will not be refunded.

The Board noted they reserved the right to reject any and all offers. Bids for the area will be accepted until noon Friday at the Chamber of Commerce office. The bids will be opened at 12:30 p.m. with the $100 being refunded to those bids not accepted.

Bob Robins, Chamber member, noted the money from the sale would be used to purchase additional land for future industrial growth in the Dexter area.

The board also voted to open bids on a five-acre tract of land located on Catalpa Street, just across from the office of Dr. Robert Isbell.

A legal notice listing the land sale terms is appearing in the Dexter newspaper.

In other business, the Chamber discussed the forming of a Junior Achievement Club in Dexter. The organization helps young people learn about the business world through making and selling small projects.

It was noted by Mrs. Mary Ellen Blankenship that I. I. Sparks, plant manager of Arvin, and T. S. Hill, superintendent of Dexter Schools, were in favor of forming the organization, but volunteers were needed to help with the organization. Mrs. Blankenship also mentioned that COE instructor Eugene Potthoff at Dexter High School may be interested in helping form the club.

In past meetings, members of the chamber were concerned about solicitors bothering city residents. It was discovered a 1949 ordinance (1486, section C) requires each peddler to purchase a city license for the cost of $50 per year. Newspaper and magazine salesmen are excluded from the rule, but they are required to register with the city clerk.

It was noted that the police may be summoned if the peddlers pose threats or refuse to leave the premises. The police can be called if the peddlers do not have a license.

State to enforce vaccination law

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — State health officials say there will be strict enforcement this fall of the state law prohibiting children from attending school until they received required measles and other vaccinations.

"The first instance of a child removed from school will probably occur in late October of this year," said James Donoho, director of the state Bureau of Immunizable Diseases.

"We have a law clearly designed to protect our children and we intend to use it," Donoho said as state health officials continued to mount their campaign against measles in the state.

State education officials say the law has been enforced in the past on a local basis only with no statewide effort toward enforcement.

During the first four months of this year, 571 cases of measles were reported compared to only eight cases during the same period a year ago.

The measles epidemics that have hit more than 27 counties throughout Missouri began last September, and health officials have blamed the resurgence of the disease on the failure of children to receive proper vaccinations.

Donoho said more than one million letters have been mailed to schools for distribution to parents, advising them of the state law requiring school children to be immunized or officials notified of an exemption.

He said school officials will compile lists of children who do not have immunizations, and they will be subject to removal from school until they obtain them. Legal action can be taken, Donoho said, if school officials fail to remove children as the law requires.

Ike-Mamie letters released to dispel alleged divorce plan

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Dwight Eisenhower never planned to divorce his wife, Mamie, and at one point told her not to worry "your pretty head" over rumors that he was having an affair with his secretary, their wartime correspondence shows.

The letters from the former president to his wife were released to the Los Angeles Times by the Eisenhower family in reaction to an ABC television screenplay being produced in part from a book by Lt. Kay Summersby, "Past Forgetting: My Love Affair with Dwight D. Eisenhower."

The screenplay is to be aired in several months, the Times said today.

Lt. Summersby, a member of the Women's Army Auxiliary Corps, was Eisenhower's driver and secretary in Europe and North Africa during World War II.

She wrote her book about the alleged affair in 1976 and died of cancer shortly afterward.

The Times reported, however, that the Eisenhower letters cast doubt on the accuracy of the Summersby book and on a story, attributed to former President Harry Truman, that the general planned to divorce his wife and marry Kay Summersby.

Truman's account of the alleged divorce plans were printed in a recent book by Merle Miller, "Plain Speaking: An Oral History of Harry S. Truman."

In his letters, Eisenhower repeatedly refers to his wife as "my darling" and "my sweetheart."

"This eve I just wanted to say you're the greatest gal in the world. I'll never be in love with anyone but you," the general wrote to his wife from Algiers on Feb. 20, 1943.

Five days later, he wrote again from Algiers: "I love you — don't go bothering your pretty head about WACs, etc., etc."

The 319 Eisenhower letters are scheduled to be published next year by Doubleday under the title, "Letters to Mamie."

The decision to make the Eisenhowers' wartime letters available to the Times was made by John Eisenhower as executor of his father's estate, with approval of other family members, the newspaper said.
